

Truman Has Power to End Steel Strike

WASHINGTON One point most people don't realize about President Truman's steel strike negotiations is that he has the definite power to...

The Economic Stabilization Act is clear and concrete. The President of the United States, Harry S. Truman, says, "may provide for making adjustments with respect to prices, wages, and salaries... to correct gross inequities."

TWO SERIOUS ERRORS

One trouble, of course, is the fact that Truman let himself be rushed into abolition of the War Labor Board, the agency which fixed prices during the war.

Insiders admit privately that this was the biggest domestic error of administration since World War II was put over partly by Reconvertor John Snyder whom Truman invited to the White House to discuss the matter.

After abolishing the War Labor Board, Truman called Fred Vinson from war reconverter to take Morgenthau's place as Secretary of the Treasury.

Grouse For Breakfast

"I WAS LISTENING to Miss Laski, Sergio, on the radio yesterday," said the Grouse, unfolding his napkin...

"I was not thinking of James Madison," commented the Grouse. "I was wondering why PM didn't get wrought up when their pet, Harold Laski, recently said the same thing—words that I'm sure, it was in a British Broadcast."

The People's Platform

"WORK OR OCCUPY..." FORT McLELLAN, Ala. I receive The Charlotte News each day here at the Fort and read the People's Platform daily. I have been reading the pro's and con's of the letter that 'The Young Workers Guild' wrote, denouncing strikers...

The Biggest Vacancy Yet

WASHINGTON For more than a month, the post of Assistant Secretary of War for Air has been vacant. Now W. Stuart Symington has been nominated by the President to fill the vacancy...

A GAP REMAINS Through the war years, the Air Forces had the backing of an Assistant Secretary of War for Air who was one of the ablest executives to come to Washington in the war...

How Will We Settle Strikes?

Commentators huff and puff and call on the Government to 'deal with' the strike situation. But when it comes to telling the truth about the height of the mean 'deal with' strikes, the critics' voice fades away...

Required Reading For J. F. W. Davis

IT IS APPARENT from the way he writes, Mr. J. F. W. Davis needs to take a look at this history of the United States. Mr. J. F. W. Davis does not know what he is writing about when he writes a book on the Jews...

The Price That Kills

One of the brethren out in Los Angeles just where you'd expect it to happen—has made an ass of himself. Nay, says of us all. He has opened the gates for a flood of speculation which can bring us naught but ruin.

What Ails Georgia?

To an outsider it looks as if Georgia has taken a long step backward, re-nouncing Ellis Arnall and all that he has wrought. When the House rebuffed him, killing the amendment which would permit him to run again, it seemed that it frowned, too, upon his new Constitution...

It may be said it may only be Ellis Arnall, but it is not only Arnall, but it is determined that no Governor should succeed himself, Arnall, Talmadge or any other. It may be, too, that the House does not share the admiration of outsiders for Governor Arnall.

The "Good" Germans Again

The most disturbing poll of opinion we've seen to date came from the Army in Germany. It revealed, after a long period of imposed secrecy, just what the American soldier in Germany thinks of the Germans, the Third Reich and the Nazis.

These results, naturally, stunned Army authorities. They properly reflected that many of our soldiers had no idea of the basic issue, the conflict, and that they had been taken in by the Goebbels propaganda through German civilians.

The Girls Come Home

Women who have served in the armed forces are not being welcomed home as conquering heroines. "Many have been disillusioned and discouraged by a cold reception from various women's groups," says Mrs. Anna M. Rosenberg, head of the New York Veterans' Service Committee.

From The Washington Post:
