

GENERAL DISORDER SOON TO DECONTROL SPEEDED AS JANUARY DEATH SEEN FOR OPA

Few Items To Be Left On List By Next Year

Cosmetics, Other Products Go Off

WASHINGTON (AP)— Congress may kill OPA in January, some high Administration officials predicted today.

But they added that by then only a slim list of very scarce, badly needed items in addition to rent will remain under ceilings.

To emphasize this forecast, OPA slashed its price list from cosmetics and a long list of non-food products today in a quick follow-up to last month's sweeping food and beverage decontrol.

The lower price shows the body of Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, top German army leader, stop a coffin in the Nuernberg Gymnasium after he had died on the gallows.

Nine other top-ranking Nazis also died with Keitel.

The End Of The Road

Government Steps Into Pilot Strike

Mediation Board Intervenes

WASHINGTON (AP)— The Government stepped into the three-day-old strike of 1,400 Trans World Airline pilots today, with both sides accepting a Federal mediation offer for 15,000 additional company employees were thrown out of work.

Frank Douglas, chairman of the Mediation Board, called opposing leaders in the dispute to his office for a conference.

The speed with which both parties responded to Douglas' invitation reinforced hopes for an early settlement of the walkout, which has grounded 115 planes, up 28,000 miles of routes extending from California to Arabia and paralyzed a $150,000 daily payroll.

David L. Behrke, president of the AFL Air Line Pilots Association, said he would accept TWA, which agreed to the meeting.

Douglas' telegram went out only a few hours after Frye announced that all but a few employees were back to work.

The pay issues in the dispute—containing enough with each from both pay scales, pay increases, differentials for day and night flying, and extra pay for flying over the 48-hour month—have been further complicated by the fact that the company and the union use different working periods for computing time.

In his 30-hour ultimatum to Frye Saturday, Behrke said the union wanted a top figure of $1,098.88 a month ($12,113.12 a year) for a Lockheed Constellation pilot flying 862 1/2 hours a year in 1947.

The present extra pay for international flying is $750 a year. The union says the pilots do not meet the 48-hour month permitted by Government regulation, while the company says they have averaged the limit under the heavy demand for lifting capacity.

In addition to pay demands, the pilots are asking for several other gains in an unexpired state. These include: a matching of the pilot's personal insurance with policies paid for by the company when he is on duty.

Queries Put To Truman

WASHINGTON (AP)— President Truman declined today to say definitely whether he will make any campaign speeches and also laughingly turned aside a newsmag's suggestion for a bat on the outcome of the Nov. 5 elections.

Election bets, the President explained, are illegal in Missouri, where he votes.

Covering a wide assortment of topics in response to fast-paced questions at a news conference, the President also said:

End to price ceilings on cotton textiles is up to Price Administrator Paul Porter and Agriculture Secretary Anderson.

He hopes some way can be found to take care of eighteen Estonians who sailed a small boat to Miami and who have been ordered deported from that country.

A temporary stay of deportation was issued today by Attorney General Clark. Legislation probably would be required to permit the United States to take in political refugees from other lands the President said.

Rumor that Clark is resigning and will be replaced by Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, were described by Mr. Truman as too absurd for comment. The same goes for rumors about resignation of Associate Justice Robert H. Jackson of the Supreme Court and in the same category is an Army and Navy Journal report that Secretary Forrestal is leaving the Navy Department, he added.

Market Hearing Held

Thomas Suspects Break In Cotton Due To Politics

WASHINGTON (AP)— Senator Elmer Thomas, Democrat, Oklahoma, said today that cotton prices may have been the cause of the recent sharp break in colton prices.

"If my cause as Republican in November," he said at the opening of an Agriculture Committee hearing on the market drop, "will be largely because of this incident and OPA."

He added that Oklahoma cotton farmers suspect the decline last week was brought about deliberately for political effect.

"Oklahoma cotton farmers think they have been unfairly treated and think the Government should do something about it," he said. "It doesn't seem to me that the Government ought to be changed."

The Senator, who is chairman of the Agriculture Committee, returned last night from his home state. TEXAS AGREES

J. E. MacDonald, Texas State Agriculture Commissioner and first witness at the hearing, said he agreed with Thomas that the market break which carried cotton to 22 cents a pound "will have a political effect on the Administration's job in power."

"I don't think we've had anything in Texas that caused as much indignation as this," he said.

Truman Mum On Lewis' Ultimatum

Silent, Too, On Wage Controls

WASHINGTON (AP)— President Truman left the threat of another nationwide soft coal strike squarely up to Secretary of Interior Krug today.

Mr. Truman declined to discuss John L. Lewis' ultimatum for the reopening of the United Mine Workers' contract at his news conference.

WAGE ISSUE The President likewise declined to comment on questions as to his plans on continued wage controls, telling reporters to read his speech of Oct. 14 lifting price ceilings from most commodities.

Mr. Truman was asked if he planned any special action to decontrol wages by Nov. 1. "The deadline which we set for the start of negotiations on a new contract to replace the existing pact between the United Mine Workers and the Government."

In the Oct. 14 address, to which he referred reporters, Mr. Truman said that decontrol of most non-food commodities would not be formal until after the start of negotiations on a new contract to replace the existing pact between the United Mine Workers and the Government.

Government officials have said this means that no specific action to lift wage limits is likely, but that rather the Administration will follow a policy of having the contract fall off automatically as individual industries are free of price controls.

At his news conference today, Mr. Truman would not draw into any elaboration of his statement. The answer to the question was found in his speech on Oct. 14.

President Truman was asked if he would mean there will be no formal wage decontrol. He said he would have no further comment.

In response to a question as to whether he had any statement to make on the status of the Wage Control Act, Mr. Truman replied that he did not, and that he is not planning to make one this week. He said he had no further comment.

Without directly mentioning the threatened coal strike, another question asked Mr. Truman whether he had any intention of calling Congress into a special session. He said no, adding that Congress would not be called for a special session but he had no further comment.

POLICY CHANGES CITED In demanding reopening of the wage agreement covering 400,000 coal miners on Lewis had demanded changes in the Administration wage policy as one of the reasons for the strike.

The UMW chief told Secretary Krug that unless new wage talks begin Nov. 1 the existing contract would be void. While Krug agreed to a 10 percent wage increase, the miners traditionally have demanded a policy of "no contract, no work."

Mr. Truman was asked at the news conference whether Lewis' ultimatum for a new contract with the UMW had been relayed to the Chief Executive.

He replied that he had no further comment.

U. S.-Red Veto Clash Brewing

NEW YORK (AP)— A clash appeared to be developing today between the United States and Russia over the right of the United Nations to make final proposals for ending the big power veto in the Security Council.

The American delegation, in a meeting today under the leadership of Chief Delegate Warren Austin, decided that it would insist upon the full right of the Assembly to discuss this and two other issues in a provisional agenda now before the Assembly's Steering Committee.

It should be permitted to come up for discussion in the United States, on the other hand, upholds the principle of free discussion as an end in itself, regardless of the American view on the matter to be discussed.

President Truman opened the Assembly meeting here yesterday. The Russian desire to block discussion of these items was described by American officials as entirely logical from the Russian viewpoint. Normal Soviet procedure on proposals to which they are opposed is to fight those proposals from the moment they first come up for discussion.

Mr. Truman disclosed the main lines of American policy on the veto in his speech. It is also being included in the text of the full minutes of its strength would be increased for a "just and lasting peace" and urged that the United Nations get on with the task of controlling atomic energy, suppressing mass destruction weapons and otherwise creating the conditions for peace.

In his speech which urged the International Assembly to get on with the task of controlling atomic energy as rapidly as possible, Mr. Truman told the delegates that "the United Nations will all the sources of the world."

He urged that the delegates reject "talk of war" and warned that "to permit the United Nations to be bogged into irreconcilable parts by different political philosophies would be a disaster to the world. He did not specifically mention the existing tensions between the United States and Russia.
