Pay Fight Dims Hope For Early End Of Session

RALEIGH — (AP) — Hopes for a comparatively early adjournment of the 1947 Legislature faded today in the midst of a fight over supplementary pay for teachers and State employees.

L. Gov. L. Y. Ballentine, president of the Senate, is expected to appoint a second set of conferees tonight to work with a House group on the difference.

Efforts are under way to grant increases from 25 to 30 per cent.

Representative Allen Arch of Wake, a veteran legislator, said today he did not see how adjournment could come before April 1. The 1945 session adjourned March 21. Other sessions ranged until April 15.

Appropriations Committee hearings were delayed because of the pay measure future. A delay in the committee naturally delays adjournment.

Allen said he expected the pay measure to be settled this week after the conferees, of which he is one appointed last week, would not hurry too much. He pointed out that under the original measure, extra money would have gone to teachers and State employees on Jan. 25 but "it's too late for that now." It is in the hope that the extra money could be paid

Claimants In Face-To-Face Talk

Thompson Moves Into Capitol

ATLANTA — (AP) — Herman Talmadge, in a brief face-to-face encounter in the executive chambers, today refused to recognize Lieut.-Gov. M. E. Thompson as Acting Governor of Georgia, but reiterated a promise to abide by a court decision in the controversy.

Thompson then set up an Acting Governor's office in the suite on the floor above normally occupied by the President of the State Senate.

Meanwhile there were three other developments in the dual-control of the State's Government:

1. Students of five Atlanta colleges and the University of Georgia at Athens, 70 miles east, planned a march on the State Capitol tomorrow to protest Talmadge's assumption of the executive office.
2. The Legislature voted to invite Talmadge to address a joint session of the General Assembly at noon tomorrow. The vote in the House was 85 to 64; in the Senate 23 to 26. Efforts to have Thompson's name added to the resolution and inviting him to speak also failed.
3. Attorney General Eagan Cook announced that he recognized Thompson as the "Acting Governor" and would substitute his name for that of Ellis Arnall in a court suit challenging Talmadge's assumption of the Governor's office.

Early Morn Fracas Ends In Killing Of Satinover

Crowell, Odum Under Charges

By DICK YOUNG
Charlotte News Staff Writer

Herman Satinover, 212 1/2 E. 5th St., well known in Charlotte's liquor trade, was dead and two men were under indictment as the result of a shooting at the home of Francis C. Odum, 410 1/2 Arlington Ave., around 3:45 A. M. today.

Worth B. Crowell, 25, resident at 410 1/2 E. 5th St., who admitted to police that he fired the shot that snuffed out Satinover's life, and Odum were formally charged with murder.

These stark facts had been shiffted out of a writer of statements from half a score of men and women who were at the Arlington Ave. address when Satinover, who was reported to have appeared there because of a quarrel with Sylvia Satinover, had "been insulted," was shot and killed in the kitchen.

MAX YERGENT

Six persons were first held by police for questioning but several others including an unidentified drunk, "passed out on the divan in the living room" when there at the time of the shooting.

According to statements from several persons, the trouble started after Miss Satinover returned home with her boy friend, who had been drinking, but had been put out of Odum's place. Satinover's mother was reported to have telephoned there, declaring that a crowd of ten or twelve men, with "my son, Herman," was coming down there.

B. B. Foster, 23, 314 Belmont Ave., said he was at the Satinover home and went with Satinover to Odum's place. They arrived there after 1 a.m. and he saw Herman Miller, S. C. who had dashed from the Satinover home to the Arlington Ave. address to warn that Herman was coming, had reached the place.

Foster said Smith had Odum in the backroom, talking with him, when the two entered and Satinover, accusing Crowell in the kitchen, wanted to know what he meant by insulting him.

Crowell replied that he knew nothing about it and, Foster said, "about that time, Foster said, 'Odum comes running out of the kitchen, grabs Herman in the back and tells Worth to shoot him.'"

According to Foster's statements, Crowell then shot at Satinover but missed. A second shot hit him in the stomach and he fell to the floor. Foster in his story to police, continued:

"Then Odum takes the gun out of Worth's hand and carried it around in his hand about three minutes. Then after the police came in, he handed the gun to the door Odum gives the gun to the girl who was present and she runs in the back room."

GUN FOUND

Foster said that police inquired about the gun when they were unable to find it he told them where it was. It was retrieved, he said, out of the purse of a girl, who was listed on the initial report as Mary Dora Cherry, who signed her statement as Mary Cherry Boatright, 809 Greenleaf.

Crowell, whose address was shown on the arrest sheet as Indian Trail out of his home at 122 Arlington Ave. as his place of residence when he was questioned by detectives, said in his statement:

"Herman walks up to me and asked me if I insulted his daughter and I told him if I did I didn't know anything about it. He then came up to me and I was in his coat pocket and swung at me with his left but I ducked and he swung at me with his right and I shot one time to scare him off. He kept coming on me and I shot him in the stomach and he fell with his head over toward the stove."

Crowell then said that he saw that when Satinover fell, Odum took the gun out of his hand but he did not know why he did it because the next time I saw

431 Missing After Steamer's Sinking

ATHENS — (AP) — The horrors of a shattering explosion and panic aboard the 8,000-ton Greek steamer Chiniarra were officially reported today to have left 431 persons missing and believed dead in the chill waters of the Gulf of Petalion, some twenty miles east of Athens.

Marshall Delayed

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The swearing-in of Gen. George C. Marshall as Secretary of State today was delayed 24 hours today after bad weather interrupted his flight to the capital.

The plane bringing the Wartime Army Chief of Staff from the West Coast was forced down at Chicago this morning. A train to complete the journey to Washington, he is due at 7:35 A. M. EST tomorrow.

Presidential Press Secretary Charles G. Ross told reporters the White House oath-taking ceremony will be held at 11 A. M. EST tomorrow, exactly 24 hours after it was originally scheduled.

Marshall arrived on the West Coast yesterday from Hawaii, where he rested for a few days after a plane trip from China. He was in China as President Truman's special envoy.

Owner Of Dogs Which Killed Woman On Trial

MIAMI, Fla. — (AP) — The trial of John W. Moore, owner of two pit bulldogs which attacked and killed Mrs. Doretta Zinke, 39, on May 16, is under way today in an open before Criminal Court Judge E. C. Munn, at liberty under $5,000 bond since in his indictment was charged with manslaughter.

Mrs. Zinke died in a hospital two days after the attack, which was bitten at a spot near where Munn kept his dogs.

NEW VEGETABLES FOR CAROLINA GARDENS

Did you ever hear of Sloboth, Wando, Fordhook 242, and Pat-American? They are the names of new vegetables for your garden, developed at the Department of Agriculture Laboratory in Charleston, S. C., and described in today's Carolina Farmer. Read this story by John H. Harris in The Tar Heel Gardener, a regular feature of Monday's farm section in the Carolina Farmer.

Government Bloc Wins

WARSAW — (AP) — The Communist-dominated Government Bloc parties' effort tonight to elect 49 out of 80 members of the seats in the Sunday Parliamentary elections was successful.

Landslide votes were cast in the big cities and heavily populated industrial areas. The Polish Socialist Mikolajczyk's opposition Polish Peasant Party (PSP) won 49 out of 80 seats.

It appeared that the PSP, and its ally, the Peasant Workers Party, were likely to share the remaining 20 per cent of the 444 seats in Parliament, which were around 90 places.

Mikolajczyk virtually abandoned hope for victory by announcing he intended to ask the Supreme Court to annul the election charging irregularities and violations of secrecy.

The first eighteen precincts in Warsaw gave the Government bloc candidates 20,633 votes to 5,576 for the PSP, 1,222 for the Labor Party and 1,469 for others.

More than 100,000 volunteer Militiamen aided the Security Police in guarding the ballot boxes against possible attack from the underground. It was estimated that 12,000 men were employed by the Government asserted the election was orderly throughout Poland.

American and British Embassy staff employees watched the voting in the heaviest centers of population.

Complete unofficial returns are expected within 48 hours. The PSP result will be announced Jan. 21.

QUICK DEATH—Herman Satinover

(standing, right), who police described as a bootlegger with a long criminal record, was shot to death early this morning at the residence (shown above) at 410 1/2 Arlington Ave., just off South Boulevard. Worth Bagley Crowell, shown at left in the top photo with City Detectives Coo Sikes and A. J. Gilleard, signed a confession that he fired one shot from a .38 caliber pistol into Satinover's chest. Francis C. Odum (bottom, right), whose address was listed as the residence where the shooting occurred, and who also has a criminal record, was accused by some of the witnesses as having held Satinover while the fatal shot was fired. The shooting occurred about 3:45 A. M. at the residence of an argument that started over Satinover's sister.

What Next, Little Man?

Associate Editor, The News

ATLANTA — As the wild and wonderful Georgia political drama unfolded before a busy-eyed national audience last week a plump little man who had no immediate stake in its outcome stood squarely in the middle of the stage and took most of the bows.

The death of Gene Talmadge and the come-opera insurrection staged by his son Herman provided an unexpected encore for Ellis Arnall, Georgia's retiring governor. Four days after the Talmadge forces seized the Capitol Arnall fought them singlehandedly, using publicity as his principal weapon. When he finally bowed on Saturday morning he had won a considerable victory — he had forced the reluctant Talmadge backers to accept jurisdiction of the Georgia courts, which will now finally settle the conflicting gubernatorial claims of Herman Talmadge and Lieutenant-Governor M. E. Thompson.

Before Herman Talmadge and Boss Roy Harris began laying the groundwork for their coup d'etat Ellis Arnall's personal popularity had reached low ebb in Georgia. His friends conceded that he was finished politically, at least for the foreseeable future. He had come up against Gene Talmadge in the primary, hand-picking James Carmichael as his successor, and he had lost. Everywhere in the country the liberalism Ellis Arnall had espoused was fading; in Georgia his sometimes extravagant New Deal line had alienated the conservative middle classes, in Georgia his sometimes extravagant New Deal line had alienated the conservative middle classes, who logically might have been expected to accept his leadership, still preferred democracy to socialism. After four years as Governor Arnall could claim no considerable personal following in his own state. It looked as though he might slide gently into that literary limbo where Henry Wallace and other displaced New Dealers have taken refuge.

Search Underway For Missing Girl

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — A widening search was underway today for eleven-year-old Arlene Waizer, whose sister, Venice, fourteen, told police a young man pulled Arlene into his car as they were taking a walk last night and sped away.

The girl's distraught parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Waizer, said Venice told them the dark-haired motorist offered the girl a ride which they refused, then stopped the car and forced Arlene in.
