Not Important Anyway

LAST WEEK in Raleigh Judge W. C. Barris signed an order directing the State Board of Elections to place Dislerant Presidential candidates on the North Carolina general election ballot. The judge apparently had his mind pretty well made before hearing the arguments. At any rate, he handed down his ruling moments after opposting counsel got through.

opposing counsel got through.

He held that the regulation of the State Board of Elections requiring that Dixierat petitions contain the names of over 10,000 qualified voters who did not participate in the primaries this Spring was "unreasonable". Attorney-General McMulian promptby announced that the decision would be appealed to the State Supreme Court.

There is a chance that the Supreme Court will overrule Judge Harris. If it hould, no great harm would be done to the nstitution of free elections in North Caro-ina, for it is abundantly clear that the tiates Rights Democrats aren't going any-obses.

This is strictly a "stay-home" political covernent. It will have, in all probability, less effect on the outcome of the Presidential race in North Carolina than a rainy election day would have. It isn't the right to establish a new political party and to put up plausible candidates that the Dissertat contend for, but the right to denies to the president of the president counting for anything. Counting for anything counting for anything counting for anything the president of the Dissertation of New York and the little Fall Employment Practices system he set up in that state. Hence, having no in the state little Fall Employment Practices agree the set up in that state. Hence, having no in the state of the Stat

Of Hospitals And Rules

NOWADAYS it is no simple thing to call on the sick at our Charlotte hospitals, delivering a poxy, box of checolates, comie book or merely a word of cheer. There are hard and fast new rules which complicate the business.

amu raw new rules which complicate the business.

For one thing, visiting hours are strictly adhered to, and the hospital authorities don't mean maybe. Patients are permitted to have only two visitors at a time, so it's something of a rat race to get there on the dot and bag the permits.

The procedure is something like this. When you enter the hospital, you face a solid front of personable but businesslike young ladies who will take no foolhiness. They want to know whom you wish to see. You tell them, and if your alling friend already has his quota of guests, you are positively out of luck.

If you do happen to get the green licht.

possively out of 10cc.

If you do happen to get the green light, you are issued a visitor's card. This must be turned in when you leave. If two such persons neglect to do this, the patient henceforth will be rid of all visitors, for school is out from that point on. In many cases, this would be a break for the patients. Some have already been caught trying to chew up the guest cards.

The medical profession is certain that too many visitors are bad for a sick person whether he (or she) is suffering from meumonia, hypertension, the smallpox or just plain mulligrubs. Temperatures always run highest on Sundays when practically every hospital room has its full quota of visitors. The charts above that, also, it long has been known that many times add a boring and tackless visitor than from the maids that has put him out of circulation. Hospitals are wonderful institutions and we are blessed in Charlotte with unusually fine ones. Incidentally, it is inspiring to see the fine work of the voluntary nurses aides in Charlottellowing personnel sometimes can be very cold and heartless in dealing with the public, in the business offices and in the halis. People who go to hospitals are troubled and attendants should take cognizance of that, be patient and genite. Most times they are, but we have discovered recently that sometimes they are not.

These Things Happen In August

A UGUST has been a nice month for those of us who like a flavor of fantasy in our news. A gentle, mist-like deer has been roving over the country.

First, it turned up in, of all places, The Bronx, populous and busy New York borough. One May Bankesser was sipping her morning orange juice when she saw it—"playing peeping Tom through the dinette window."

Being of gentle nature herself, Mrs. Bankesser went off to the pantry in search of an ear of corn for the lost animal, but when ahe returned it had removed its nose from the window pane and was go ne, bounding across her backyard, its tail up and its tawny spots glowing brightly in the sun.

Next the woods creature was seen loping along the asphalt of one of the Bronx's busy streets. Police, the viliains, were in hot pursuit. But, playfully, the deer out-stripped the patrol car and disappeared

A final report on its progress came from, another Bronx native who saw the deer galloping out toward the wilds of Westchester Cogunty.

And then last Saturday a lady in Winston-Salem phoned police, excitedly reporting that she had spotted a deer.

It would be all little presumptious of us to suggest that this was the same deer seen in the Bronx, that it had loped down Highway Number One and cut over to WinstonSalem. But the two reported appearances had well over two weeks between them and a deer—this deer in particular—is a notoriously fleet character.

Whether the same deer or another it makes a pleasant tale for those of us who have been too long in city presi.

Grinly, however; it emphasizes the fact
hat we have lost touch with the world
hat we have lost touch with the world
hat we have lost touch with the world
and always startings color changes due in a month or so, it might be well to renew our acquaintances with wood that is still growing, with rocks that havent be en
