TAFT STICKS OUT HIS NECK

SENATOR TAFT overlooks one very obvious thing in his criticism of past Far Eastern policy. Not until the invasion of Southern Korea was there a "psychological Pearl Harbor" to unite American and world opinion behind bold U. S. military action to halt Communism.

When the Secretary of State Acheson gradually in his Senate speech Wednesday, First he cried loudly that the President had usurped the power of Congress to declare war, and then he hurriedly admitted that he supported the President's decision. That fence-straddling was calculated to please both the isolationists and the internationalists.

NO TIME FOR JITTERS

IT IS NOW almost a week since Communist North Korea invaded U. S. and U. N.-opposed South Korea. If Charlotte isn't suffering from "war jitters", it's suffering from something close to it.

action illegal, from the only basis for judgment as to which way Russia will lead—and it still remains a question. Will there be war? Now? Tomorrow? Next year?

THE PROBLEM OF JONATHAN DANIELS

WE ARE NOT quite sure just what the North Carolina Democratic national committee is, or what it is supposed to do. We assume that his job is two-fold: (1) to represent the North Carolina party organization on the national Democratic committee, and (2) to help knock over the Republicans any time they raise their heads in the South.

The News committed the gross heresy of endorsing Governor Dewey for the Presidency in 1946. This was the first time that the News has ever done this.

From The New York Times

TALE OF TWO CITIES

WORKERS who would search for Southern Negroes to write and Negro organizations in voluntary movements to promote the largest good of the greatest number might take a flying trip to Roanoke, Va., and Greenville, S. C.

THE emergency Cabinet session held by President Truman immediately after the attack on South Korea was the most dramatic in the history of the United States. The President had just flown from Independence, Mo., to find Secretary of State Acheson, Secretary of Defense Johnson, Secretary of the Army, Secretary of the Navy, Secretary of the Air Force, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and Chief of the Federal Reserve Board.

CHARLOTTE EDITORS: THE News' article which you thank you for the splendid assistance which your fine newspaper rendered the election officials during registration and the primary.

Russia's Real Goal In Korea?

BRADLEY read the important question of whether the Russian satellite aimed to attract our attention away from Korea. He warned that the main Russian punch would be at the South Korean front.

Truman Takes Responsibility

AFTER the President had made the decision, he told his advisers that he himself would take full responsibility. "I think I know the Russians and how they operate better than you do," he told his military and State Department.

Argue Over Announcement

THE President's announcement that he was not sending the U. S. Air Force to Korea was a surprise to many. The announcement was made on Monday night.
