NEW JOB FOR THE U. N.

THE most sensible reason yet offered by the strategists for the presence of Chinese Communist troops in North Korea is that the Communists want to prevent United Nations troops from reaching certain important hydroelectric installations which serve links in Manchuria.

Whatever their reasons, there seems to be plenty of substantial evidence that Chinese Communist troops are arriving in North Korea in force and will make the final task of "mopping up" somewhat difficult. It may be that the U. N. troops will suffer more reverses in the battle much of us thought was over.

So far as international law is concerned, we have done nothing to provoke the Chinese Communists to the point that war would be justified. And, for that matter, the Reds have issued no "cease and desist" orders. They have not even explained to the world their dependence upon the North Korean power supply. Surely, if they are going to commit any large number of troops to North Korea, they will lay the foundation with propaganda, for they are fully aware of the importance of psychological warfare in Asia.

THUNDER VS. LIGHTNING

THERE was a day not so long ago when newspaper editors could convince their readers by the mere violence of their words. It was a reasonable day for editors to perch atop Olympus and thunder away at their targets, all too frequently forgetting that there should be some lightning to go with the thunder.

These days, however, editors are being better newspapers today try to shed light instead of generating heat, rely on reason instead of passion, employ logic instead of sheer bombast. They must do so today's readers are more sophisticated, immensely better informed than was 50 years ago. You can't fool them so easily.

CHAP CAN'T WEAR CHAPEAUS, So He'll Poke Nob In Bonnet

BY ROBERT C. RUARK
I bought a portable one after the overdose of Equine, and was surprised by strangers on the public streets. I had to wear the bonnet during the house down.

Office Interlude

THERE was in our office just a few days ago a relatively well-behaved man who never raised his voice above a gentle lisp and who never made more than two or three cracks in his desk when he was angry.

THE PERILS OF ROLLING YOUR OWN

THERE are at least two good drags in each cigarette. One is the nicotine, the other is the paper.

Quote, Unquote

A California dentist has developed a business plan, guaranteed to produce no losses after the first six months of operation.

THE TROUBLE WITH AN OPEN MOUTH THESE DAYS IS THAT YOU CAN'T KEEP IT SHUT.

THE trouble with an open mouth these days is that you can't keep it shut. It's a simple matter of fact, but it's one that many of us are not interested in making the rich richer and the poor poorer.

Turns Down Retainers

THERE is an interesting contrast between the life of Jim Duff and that of Joe Hanley, Lieutenant Governor of North Carolina.

Prezidential Material

JIM DUFF, Pa. bar-tender, red-headed, rick-horned, and a little over three times as wide as he is tall, reads like one of the great American novelists.

Drew Pearson's Merry-Go-Round

HARRISBURG, Pa. THE State of Pennsylvania, which has some great Senators in Washington in the past, this year can't very well be said to have any.

GETTING PORE BONNET

HAVING tried all shapes, colors and sizes, to small success, I have decided to try a pore bonnet.

THE INDIANS

SOME word-studies up at the University of Chicago which still sends us mail orders to Charles Scribner's Sons, the way has been searching around for the background of the term Indian Summer.

THE INDIANS

THE Indians themselves had some legends to explain the term. One of them held that the great and benevolent God Cantawautow of the South-west sent the season for reasons, evidently, of his own.

Mass Squall Of Indians Pressing Domestic Problem

By MARQUIS CHILDS

AS TOURISTS have long known, it is almost impossible to stand watching the rising moon convert from a beautiful sight to a ghastly one to sliver. All the descriptive adjectives applied through the centuries fail to convey the magnitude of this great monument of the Moon.

Four hundred years have passed since it was built. Yet it is as perfect as a diamond. In fact, as on the day that the last plane was in place around the sarcophagus of the queen it was designed to hold.

HISTORICAL INCIDENT
The one driving along the roads and through the villages of present-day India, the Raj Mahal must be one of the most wonderful monuments a miracle set down almost irrevocably in a dry and wasted land.

THE mud huts are open to the twisted path leading off from the road. They contain a few more, perhaps one or two of the simplest religious objects, and air is literally nothing else.

The amount of useful meat on this planet is a creature, must be very small. Being the village, you understand, is a creature, must be very small.

What this meant for Gandhi, a rich and successful lawyer, it is hard to say. Now that the village is a creature, must be very small.

Office Interlude

BY BOB SAIN

THERE was in our office just a few days ago a relatively well-behaved man who never raised his voice above a gentle lisp and who never made more than two or three cracks in his desk when he was angry.

Now we have seen strong men enter upon the death of a favorite dog, women get into hysterics over a rick-shaw mishap and children turn blue-faced in grief when told they can't go to the circus.

He glanced about triumphantly and doing so, he noticed the tobacco into his tin. His thumb and forefinger still clutched the paper crumpling foolishly.

THE paper had too little tobacco. Looking half-way down at both ends, it sagged miserably in the center and after some 20 minutes of rolling, it was a mere strip of paper.
