THE PRESIDENT AND HIS SHIELD

MOST everyone felt a quick surge of sympathy for President Truman after the attempt on his life this week. Sometimes we forget that being President of the United States is not an idylic existence, that a President can never feel completely safe from the bullets or bombs of craned, fanatical would-be assarsimmot even in the quietness of his official residence.

anew, rather than repressed, by the initial failure.

Mr. Truman, however, was not the sole recipiegs of the nation's sympathy and admiration. Both are being heaped generously upon the courageous, quick-tinking White House police who, upholding, the highest tradition of their organization, risked their own lives to protect the American President from bodily harm.

That is their job, of course. That is what they are trained to do, and paid to do. But no salary, however high, could instill in the Presidential guards the ready courage and swift efficiency that were obvious at Blair House on Wednesday.

of infinite good sense, Like H. L. Mencken, whose death bed he symbolically shared, Shaw was a master of that oft-misused technique; destruction by ridicule. him. Equally beholden, if not more so, are the men who write the English language for a fiving, Shaw, as much as anyone else, pulled English literature from the velvet-lined alough of Victorianism. Every twentieth century writer of English has, in one way or another, profited from the fact that QBS lived.

And Shaw was not a prophet without honor. Just last Monday night there consounds as a sounday night there con-wened in New York a group to pay tribute to him. Elected to office in the first Shaw Society of America were such notables as Albert Einstein, Katherine Cornell, Gene Tunney, Thomas Mann, Samuel summed up his contribution:

"This is the true jov in life, the being tused for a purpose recognized by yourself as a mighty one; the being theoroughly wern out before you are thrown on the scrap hear; the belng a force of Nature instead of a feverish settist little clod of aliments and gireranch complaining that the world will not devote itself to making you happy."

And Shaw, again, wrote the best explanation for his willingness to mix it up with any and everybody:

And finally, it was Shaw who wrote

"Everything happens to everybody sooner or later if there is time enough."

or later if there is time enough.—
This week, after a certain period of time, something new happened to OB8.
Added to our regret on losing one of the great writers of our time is the disap-pointment that he won't be back to write about this newest, and oldest, of experiences.

One stop was Belgrade, where an interview with Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito impressed Mr. Chatham. Tito is seeking a large loan in this country. If he does not set it, drought and the economic blockade of the Cominform may force the rebellious Marshal into capitulation to Moscow, or overturn his government in favor of one subservient to the Kremilin.

Many Americana believe, without enthusiasm for Tito and his dictator's methods, that Yugoslavia would be a passable risk for a loss—if not financially, for the political advantage of strengthening the one former satellite government which has openly voiced its emplay for the Kremilin and lived, so far, to tell the tale. Rep. Chatham and his colleagues apparently more commend the loan—but Mr. Chatham gives his approval to it in a currously arefund way.
