Wall Street Today

NEW YORK (U. S. P. M.)—The stock market closed back mildly in early trading today after its wide gyrations earlier this week. Key stocks took losses ranging from fractions to around 2 points. There were a few small gainers.

The opening was active and the ticker tape once more was late in reporting transactions, as it has been every day this hectic week. Today's delay lasted only a couple of minutes, then turnover became very slow. Subsequently, trading picked up with prices declining.

Overnight corporate and economic news was mixed and there was nothing to spur the market to wide moves in either direction. Latest reports showed that the Federal Reserve Board was still restraining credit despite a published report yesterday that it was ready to follow a softer policy.

Man Gets 5 Years For Stealing Car

Judge John W. Murphy in Federal Court at Scranton yesterday sentenced a Washington, D. C. man to five years in prison for robbing a car in the District of Columbia and transporting it to this area.

Sentence was pronounced on Elmo P. Koh, 26, of 1422 North street, Washington, who made a plea of guilty, Judge Murphy said and Rumbel.

The sentence was given in the light of four previous convictions on car theft charges. Koh was arrested on October 1 by Troopers William Hartman and Edmund Peters, of the local police force. They found him asleep in the car three-fourths of a mile off Route 200 on the old Wilkes-Barre road between the Stage Coach Inn and Rumbel.

Albert Anastasia, 'Executioner For Murder Inc.,' Scooped At Police From His Underworld Throne

NEW YORK (U. S. P. M.)—Albert Anastasia, who was murdered today, long had thumbed his nose from his throne in the underworld.

Federal, state and local authorities bailed for the reputed master of Murder, Inc., for three decades here, but he always slipped off the hook.

Anastasia, 33, beat five murder rap. One landed him in the shadow of the electric chair but he never walked the last mile.

He was described repeatedly as "hard hard executioner" of Martin Luther King, the ubiquitous Brooklyn mob of the 30s. Witnesses testified he "fingered" half of the 63 American gangsters.

He was mentioned time and again as the sinister figure behind the reported New York-New Jersey waterfront racket which milked legitimate business of millions of dollars a year.

Four of the Anastasia brothers were linked with the dreaded Mafia, Italian terrorist organization, with names synonymous with crime, with hangings and shipping, trucking, laundry and garment industry shakedown.

Yet, authorities could make only one conviction stick—a concealed weapons charge. Anastasia was born in 1904 in Tropea, a fishing village on the coast of Italy. He was one of 12 children. The family name ended in "O" but he changed it to "A" when he came to America.

Linked to the Mafia, Giuseppe Anthony Gerardo—knocked about the streets, named as a witness in the murder of Peter Panto, a crusading longshoreman whose body was dumped in a lime pit in Lyndhurst, Morris (Morris) Diamond, an ILA business agent who was cut down on a Brooklyn street, and other jobs.

By that time, while Brooklyn authorities hunted him anew, Anastasia was in the Army. It was there that a gang hideout. He thought to look for him there. Served At Indianapolis

Anastasia first was attached to the 8th Infantry Division at Camp Forrest, Tenn. The outfit went overseas but Albert didn't. He was transferred to Indianapolis, Pa., and spent a two-year hitch training Army longshoremen as a technical sergeant.

How did he land that berth? "A circular from the War Department. They spent 18 months in the shadow of the chair, won a retrial on a technicality and went free on April 16, 1932. Four key witnesses who testified against them in the first trial disappeared or were slain.

Three months (30 days) after winning dismissal of the first homicide charge, Anastasia was back in for murder again. The case was dismissed.

Koh finally confessed stealing the car in Washington on Sunday, September 29, and was turned over to the FBI.

Last May, Koh was released from the federal prison at Lewisburg where he had served three years for violation of the Dyer Act, which prohibits the interstate transportation of stolen vehicles.

ment came out that they wanted expert longshoremen," he told the U. S. Senate Crime Committee in 1931, "and when I went into the service I had put that down, that I knew how to load a ship, how much capacity of a boom was, how much can a boom lift and that is the reason I was relieved from the infantry and sent to transportation."

The Army gave him the citizenship the government later tried to take away. Before being honorably discharged as overage in 1944, he was made a citizen under a law favoring servicemen.

Partner In Hazleton Firm In 1948, he became a partner in the Madison Dress Co., in Hazleton, Pa., and assumed the air of a respectable, fairly well-to-do businessman.

The Senate Crime Committee and other investigative bodies found it hard to corral Anastasia for questioning and even harder to get anything out of him once he did appear.

He wouldn't tell Senate probes anything about his finances or his movements prior to 1948. "I decline to answer on grounds that might tend to incriminate me," was his stock reply.

A later appearance before the New York State Crime Committee in 1952 also drew a blank. The Senate cited Anastasia for contempt and the U. S. attorney general's office instituted proceedings aimed at stripping him of his citizenship.

The "syndicate" a national crime cartel patterned along the lines of a giant corporation—was formed around 1934 and Anastasia took his place among the hierarchy. Others in the upper bracket included Frank Costello, Joe Adonis, Al Capone and the Moretti.

Reles, picked up in the spring of 1940, squealed to save his own scraggled hide ashore in New York in 1941.

"Who knew about passports in those days," Anthony said later. "Anybody who was a longshoreman or an ILA business agent who was cut down on a Brooklyn street, and other jobs."

"Perfect Case Blows Up" O'Dwyer later contended that his "perfect case" against Anastasia went out the window with Reles.

A 1945 Kings County grand jury indictment against Anastasia was sufficient proof to warrant Anastasia's indictment and conviction, but Anastasia was neither prosecuted, imprisoned nor convicted," the panel said.

Another facet of the case came to light later—"wanted" cards on Anastasia disappeared from police files in 1940, and all efforts to nail him ended until 1942.

By that time, while Brooklyn authorities hunted him anew, Anastasia was in the Army. It was there that a gang hideout. He thought to look for him there. Served At Indianapolis

Anastasia first was attached to the 8th Infantry Division at Camp Forrest, Tenn. The outfit went overseas but Albert didn't. He was transferred to Indianapolis, Pa., and spent a two-year hitch training Army longshoremen as a technical sergeant.

PLANNED CALL FOR ANASTASIA

Senate Committee Investigating Rackets Looked to Witness Role.

WIDE NEW YORK PROBE

Police Indicate That Anyone Suspected Will Undergo a Quiz.

Washington, Oct. 25 (AP)—The Senate rackets investigating committee said today the slain Albert Anastasia would have been one of the witnesses in its investigations of labor racketeering in New York.

Spokesmen said any indication that he might have been killed to prevent him testifying before the committee could bring the FBI into the investigation. Chairman McClellan (D-Ark.) was not immediately available.

Agreement With Lawyer. The rackets committee itself had not subpoenaed Anastasia, but the Senate investigations subcommittee which McClellan also heads had served a continuing subpoena on the gangster last year. Robert F. Kennedy, counsel to both groups, said Anastasia's lawyer had agreed to produce his client for quizzing by either committee at any time.

The investigations subcommittee had crossed Anastasia's trail in an investigation of alleged racketeer infiltration of companies which held contracts to produce or haul shipments of military uniforms.

The rackets committee reportedly had picked up evidence that Anastasia was involved in a garbage collection racket. Alleged objective of this racket was to sell "protection" to waste collectors which would assure them that competitors could not get collective bargaining contracts with labor unions.

Kennedy declined to give any details of the questioning that had been in session with Anastasia. He told a Mutual radio network audience: "We were still interested in probing the interstate shipments of uniforms—along the lines we probed when Anastasia first appeared before our committee (behind closed doors last year). His counsel assured us the other day Anastasia would be available to our committee when we wanted him."

Plan a Deep Probe. Meantime, in New York police officials said "we're going to talk to anybody we think will throw any light on this case," referring to Anastasia's murder.

And a spokesman added: "You can assume that all witnesses are being protected."

Among underworld figures questioned were Mike Mirante, an old friend of Anastasia's, and Anniole Ercole, a former prize fight manager with political and underworld ties.

Police were looking for Anastasia's bodyguard and chauffeur, Anthony Coppola, but he surrendered himself for questioning.

One of the mysterious facets of the case was Coppola's whereabouts when his pal was murdered.

Coppola, who lives at Fairview, N. J., was quoted as saying he picked up Anastasia's car at 11 a. m. in a parking lot not far from the hotel, where Anastasia had put it at 8 a. m., and drove it to his home.

It Couldn't Be Sputnik Unless It's in Reverse

more avenue, one of the Atlas of the Heavens plotters, asked Miller what direction he had been looking when he saw the object. Miller was unsure. The two stepped out on the roof for a look around. Miller decided he had been looking south.

Then Another Report. Mrs. Elizabeth Cole, 5335 Renner road, Shawnee, was the second to report. When she stepped into the room she was asked what direction she had been looking.

"Well, let's see," she said. "What direction am I facing now?" "What we need is a compass in here," Brennan said. Near the conclusion of the session, Chambers said that it appeared that there had been three objects which could be checked out on the Heavenly Atlas, and the checking had been handled, in all three instances, by a young man who was working with him, Richard Peterson, 13201 West Ninety-sixth street, Lenexa.

And it appeared, said Peterson, that one object was an airplane and one a meteor. This left the third unaccounted for.

The third object traveled north to south, in almost opposite direction from that believed to have been taken by Sputnik. Brennan said no one could be sure but that the Russians have launched a second Sputnik, traveling a reverse orbit from the first.

A look at Sputnik, or the rocket which could be checked out, was reported by many observers. The observers were not sure which they saw—the rocket or the space satellite.

Carl Buboltz, 9740 Aberdeen road, Leawood, said he saw the satellite at 8:11 o'clock last night. He said the object appeared to be round and resembled a star as it crossed the sky.

Buboltz's description matched descriptions given by Bobby Harmon, 4032 Bar, and Mrs. Albert Harmon, 5730 Lockton lane, Fairway. Mrs. Rosemary, 301 West Fifty-ninth street, Prairie Village, Mrs. John Pollock, 2000 Tomahawk road, Prairie Village, and Paul R. Faucher, 7245 Belleview avenue.

Robert J. Wehner, 2616 Briarcliffe, said he saw the object at 8:15 o'clock. He said the object appeared to be elongated.

Two other customers in Rudkin Heights reported that they saw the object at 8:15. The two are Robert De Vries, 1037 Cambridge, and Millard Hamilton. They were at Hamilton's home, and watched through a small telescope. De Vries said he saw the object at 8:15. He said the object appeared to be a bright star and moved rapidly.

RESENTS THE G. O. P. LITTLE ROCK VIEW

Butler Calls on like to Denounce Effort as He Sees It.

MORAL ACTION AS BEST

Democratic National Chairman Addresses Michigan Democrats.

Sister Lakes, Mich., Oct. 25 (AP)—Paul M. Butler, Democratic national chairman, called on President Eisenhower tonight to denounce what Butler described as Republican efforts to gain partisan advantage from the "tragic and critical situation" at Little Rock.

In a speech reviewing his party's record on civil rights, made at a Van Buren County Democratic dinner, Butler also:

1. Urged the President to replace the "force of the bayonet with the force of vigorous moral leadership" in the Southern school desegregation controversy.

2. Denied the Democratic party is supporting a stand for civil rights and said it is standing firm on the Lloyd platform. He also criticized the attitude of Arkansas Gov. Orval Faubus in the "Little Rock crisis," not that of the Democratic party.

3. Criticized Southern Democrats who are "disagreeing with what he said was the party's 'right viewpoint' on civil rights. But he said reading students out of the party would not, per se, either strengthen our party or its basic philosophy and its programs. For it is majority rule that speaks in our party and majority opinion that governs our policies."

4. Denying that the Democratic party is modifying its civil rights stand, Butler said such reports had been spread in some quarters for partisan purposes. Associates in Washington said Butler had in mind Republican editorials contending the party had not repudiating Governor Faubus.

The Democratic advisory council in a statement September 15 criticized both Eisenhower and Faubus. The council last Monday in another statement attacked the President but refrained from mentioning the Arkansas governor.

"Let me say now—as I have said in the past—and as the Democratic advisory council has made unmistakably clear, Faubus in this matter is not that of the Democratic party," Butler said.

M'GHEE AND GARY AGREE

Miami Industrial Program Praised

Although Miami has several dependable industries, large and small, to keep the city's economy at a high level, there's plenty of room here for more manufacturing firms, Mayor Roy McGhee said Saturday. The mayor's statement followed Gov. Raymond Gary's glowing statement that Miami is making the most of its opportunities and is a good example for other Oklahoma communities that want new industries. "We've got everything any industrialist would need," McGhee said, "a modern school system, ample resources including power and water, church for almost every faith and a new Civic Center."

Murder Probe Turning West

Chicago Gunman Killed Anastasia NEW YORK, Oct. 26 (UP)—Police traced a gun used in the gangland slaying of Albert Anastasia to Chicago today. The discovery, which was made by police officers from the Chicago office, is a major step in the investigation of the slaying of the mob boss. Police officers in Chicago are now trying to locate the gun. It was found in a rooming house in Chicago. The gun was a .38 Smith & Wesson.

DOWNED BY ASIAN FLU—Some of the hundreds of University of Massachusetts students ill with the Asian flu lie in an emergency infirmary set up in the ballroom of the student union building on the university campus at Amherst, Mass.

Cold Blast Increases Flu Danger

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 26 (UP)—The record-breaking cold snap poses a threat of additional flu outbreaks in Oklahoma, Dr. Grady Mathews, state health commissioner, said today. Mathews warned parents to keep children from making unnecessary contact with large groups, he said. "As with all communicable diseases, flu cases increase in crowded conditions," he said. He said the school closings were a sound move in the interests of health, since students were kept from being exposed to the disease from their classmates. Telephone calls and letters to the state health office have increased in the last week, Mathews said, and occasionally a caller complained about the lack of Asian flu vaccine, or its ineffectiveness.

Dispatch From Russia Comes As a Surprise

Marshal May Get Bulganin's Office

MOSCOW, Oct. 26 (UP)—Marshal Georgi Zhukov today was relieved of his post as Soviet defense minister. An official announcement said he would be succeeded by Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky, hero of the World War II defense of Stalingrad. In London there was speculation the sudden announcement meant the early elevation of Zhukov, a wartime friend of President Eisenhower, to the post of premier, replacing Nikolai A. Bulganin.

Urgent Call to Ship Crew Might Mean Sub Detected

HALIFAX, Oct. 26 (UP)—An urgent public recall of the crew of the Navy frigate Fort Erie today resulted in speculation that an unidentified submarine had been sighted off the Nova Scotia coast near Halifax. The Navy sent out an urgent call to the crewmembers in Halifax to report back to the ship. The call was made over radio and television stations, movie theaters, and the Nova Scotia Football League game at Dalhousie University.

Chill To Linger Across Region

Bloody Trail Marks Senate Unit Study of N. Y. Garbage Industry

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11—Senate investigators said today their investigation of racketeering in New York's rich and rowdy garbage industry has followed a bloodstained trail into the haunts of underworld big shots.

Robert F. Kennedy, counsel to the special committee conducting the inquiry, said public hearings will start on schedule tomorrow even though killers' guns have silenced two witnesses.

The Senate counsel said Feola was sentenced to death as the slayer of a New York policeman in 1939 but won a new trial in which he pleaded guilty to manslaughter charges.

He said Ricci was mentioned in the old Senate crime committee hearings as "one of the top mobsters" in the country and has a long record including an assault conviction.

Kennedy said Raitelli has been named by former Attorney General Herbert Brownell as a lieutenant of Frank Costello, notorious New York gangster.

Chairman John McClellan (Dem.), Arkansas, has announced the inquiry stems from charges that a corrupt combine of certain garbage haulers, gangsters and teamster officials "has gained powerful influence in the industry, using gangster tactics to freeze out competitors."

Mr. Kennedy described it to reporters, "it is more of an investigation of the association and how they operate, and the operations of labor relations consultant, Vincent J. Squillante."

But he said the roles of some union officials also would figure largely in the testimony.

Mr. Kennedy declined to spell out just where the names of Anastasia and Scallan fit into the picture.

Container Corp. Earnings Affected By Profit Squeeze

CHICAGO, Nov. 11—Container Corp. of America will show an 8 to 9 per cent drop in net sales for the year ending Dec. 31, Wesley M. Dixon, president said.

However, he explained that any drop in net sales is not due to a decrease in the volume of business in November and December.

Last year the company had net income of $18,230,919 or $1.71 a common share on net sales of $798,008,765.

The earnings lag for paper producers is due to the industry's previous dependence on increased volume to make profits, said Mr. Dixon.

Next year Container Corp. will save money by putting less in capital expansion, Mr. Dixon said.

Mr. Dixon estimated the company will have a 75 per cent increase in the telephone company, 75 per cent of the telephone company.

The 61 million dollar construction program, the bank said, also will be financed by the sale of common stock of the Cuban Telephone Company to private Cuban investors and to I.T.I.

Advances under the export import bank credit will be repayable over 15 years beginning two years from the date on which each advance is made, the bank said.

Lockheed's First Prop-Jet Beats Schedule

BURBANK, CAL., Nov. 11—One month ahead of a tight production schedule, Lockheed Aircraft Corp.'s first prop-jet Electra for commercial airlines was rolled off the assembly line today.

Engineers immediately started ground checking of engines and automatic systems. The first four Electras will undergo an intensive proving program directed at Civil Aeronautics Administration type certification by Sept. 30, 1958.

The first test flight was scheduled Jan. 1, 1958, but may be moved up to 90 to 91 passengers and provides 300 miles an hour faster than the Electra 40.

The plane is 100 feet long, has a wingspan of 29 feet and is equipped with four 250-horsepower engines with four-bladed propellers. It carries 60 to 91 passengers and provides 300 miles an hour faster than the Electra 40.

William G. Bray Will Push Plans For A.E.C. Probe

INDIANAPOLIS (INS) - R. P. William G. Bray, of Martinsville, indicated today he will stump for a full-scale investigation of the Atomic Energy Commission for its delay of the world's largest atom smelter.

The Seventh District representative said the AEC is making a serious and dangerous mistake in allowing work to create a radically new energy accelerator which would have the effective power of 500-million electron volts.

Bray said if top American scientists are correct in saying the machine would give the United States definite world supremacy in nuclear research, then the brains of America should be utilized in its construction. He added: "But if governmental bureaucrats like the AEC try to take a real scientific break-through, then something should be done. The AEC is making a serious and dangerous mistake and showing an entire lack of understanding."

"I think there should be either a Congressional investigation into the AEC action or some sort of investigation by the executive branch."

The Hoosier Republican's statement came on the heels of an AEC decision that the giant accelerator should be built near Argonne National Laboratories near Chicago instead of at Madison, Wis., as suggested by the Western Union Research Association (MURA).

"Bray said he "just couldn't believe that the AEC would take such a stand against MURA." He said there is "no place in the world where we can get top physicists of the type who can build the MURA machine except from universities."
