

To Probe New York Police Graft Charge

NEW YORK (AP) — A sweeping investigation into charges of police corruption has been ordered by Mayor Robert F. Wagner.

A group of authors and editors, which calls itself the citizens emergency committee, has charged that there is graft in the granting of night club entertainers' licenses and misuses of the funds obtained from the license fees.

The committee announced it would ask Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller for a state inquiry into the police department.

But Mayor Wagner moved ahead of the committee by directing City Commissioner of Investigation Louis L. Kaplan to check every phase of the situation.

The mayor's action followed a two-hour police department hearing during which charges and countercharges were traded by several committee members and Police Commissioner Stephen P. Kennedy.

Asks For Resignation

At one point, Maxwell T. Cohen, attorney for the committee, asked Kennedy to resign, accusing him of "psychopathic behavior."

Kennedy replied by promising to send a full transcript of the hearing to the Bar association's grievance committee for possible action against Cohen.

The main charge at the hearing was that a night club entertainer, Richard M. Buckley, had been asked for bribe during a police Honor Legion dinner last month.

The Honor Legion is a social organization to which both policemen and nonpolicemen belong. It is not an official committee.

Kennedy ordered an investigation into the Buckley bribery charge to determine "the truth or falsity" of it.

Buckley, a humorist, died of a stroke last Saturday in the midst of a fight to regain his cabaret card, which had been taken from him because of false statements or his application.

Need Identification Cards

Since 1941, all cabaret employees have had to apply for police identification cards, be fingerprinted and photographed and pay a fee.

Harold Humes, Jr., a novelist, who is the committee spokesman, testified that Buckley was in the Metropolitan Transfer Authority (MTA) is carried out at midnight.

The Amalgamated Transport Union, Division 1277, has ordered 500 street car and bus mechanics off their jobs in demanding a $1.11 hourly package increase.

MTA has made a package offer of 41 cents an hour, claiming that is the most it can give without increasing fares. The mechanics involved now draw $2.61 an hour in the top classification.

The threatened strike would be the most serious in Southern California history. In previous strikes, unions did not strike simultaneously the Metropolitan coach lines and the Los Angeles transit lines.

Patrons usually walked a few blocks to parallel routes of the streetcar carrier. In 1959, MTA purchased and merged the two private operators, so the strike scheduled for midnight Tuesday would halt all of the 1,432 buses and streetcars.

Negotiators were to meet once again to explore the possibility of a 90-minute compromise on disputed contract terms.

Chicagoan Demands Quiz Of Checkers Of Poll Lists: One Case Is Outlined

CHICAGO — Careful questioning of polling list canvassers in precincts in which large numbers of registration irregularities have been reported is being urged by a Chicagoan.

The Tribune, in its Monday edition, carried the following on the Williams case:

This is a case history of what happened to one Chicago voter just prior to the presidential election.

It is a recital of what happened in one ward when the citizen tried to exercise his constitutional right to cast a ballot.

The Tribune did not ask his party preference.

Home To Register

The voter is Teel Williams, 6115 Sheridan road, executive director of the Mahogany Association, Inc., 666 North Lake Shore drive. He moved to Chicago just over two years ago from Grand Rapids, Mich.

On Oct. 13, he and his wife registered to vote in the Nov. 8 City hall and explained the move to a business trip and flew home from Washington, D. C., to do so.

The Williamses received her voter registration card for the 13th precinct of the 4th ward. The card addressed the move to Chicago.

It was made out in the name of "William Teel."

Second Card In Error

At this time, Williams was on a trip to North Carolina, so Mrs. Williams telephoned the city board of election commissioners to get a new card.

She was told that the card was in the mail, but it never came.

FRANKLIN, W.Va. (UPI) — The wreckage of a missing plane and the body of the pilot were located early Tuesday three miles north of nearby Spruce Knob.

Col. Robert G. Bell of the West Virginia Civil Air Patrol said 50 members and other volunteers were sent into the woods Monday night after a passing Army plane reported sighting wreckage like the wrecked plane. They continued their search until the craft and the pilot were found around 1 a.m.

The plane had left from the Valley Airport in Prince Georges County, Md., near Washington, Sunday night for West Philadelphia, Ohio. Bell had an engine problem there and Jackson was flying the plane.
