

McCarthy's Backers Descend On Capitol

Debate Goes On In Tense Atmosphere

Move To Postpone Showdown Opposed

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate picked up its debate today in an atmosphere of tension heightened by the descent of hundreds of McCarthy admirers on the capitol.

By trains, buses and private cars, partisans of the Wisconsin Republican senator flocked into the city for a "National Rally for McCarthy" to be held in Constitution Hall tonight.

Many of them came to the capitol to buttonhole senators and urge against censure of McCarthy. Sen. Saltonstall (R-Mass.) told reporters 60 persons from Massachusetts had visited him and brought signatures from 4,000 other McCarthy supporters. He said he told them he would listen to the debate before making up his mind.

DELAY URGED

In advance for the session, Sen. Capehart (R-Ind.) said he would propose that the Senate put off a vote on the censure issue until January.

The idea seemed to find little favor. Republican Leader Knowland (Calif.) told newsmen the present session was called for the specific purpose of acting on the censure issue and "I think it should be disposed of during the present 83rd Congress."

Knowland said it would "not be in the interest of either party, the Senate or the country" to put off a vote until next January. He also said he doubted whether either side to the dispute would want to do so.

Saltonstall, the assistant Republican leader, expressed a similar view. So did Sen. Dirksen (R-Ill.), a leading supporter of McCarthy. Dirksen said he felt the Senate was "almost compelled to take action of some kind" at the present session.

Knowland said it would "not be in the interest of either party, the Senate or the country" to put off a vote until next January. He also said he doubted whether either side to the dispute would want to do so.

Saltonstall, the assistant Republican leader, expressed a similar view. So did Sen. Dirksen (R-Ill.), a leading supporter of McCarthy. Dirksen said he felt the Senate was "almost compelled to take action of some kind" at the present session.

Knowland said it would "not be in the interest of either party, the Senate or the country" to put off a vote until next January. He also said he doubted whether either side to the dispute would want to do so.

Saltonstall, the assistant Republican leader, expressed a similar view. So did Sen. Dirksen (R-Ill.), a leading supporter of McCarthy. Dirksen said he felt the Senate was "almost compelled to take action of some kind" at the present session.

Knowland said it would "not be in the interest of either party, the Senate or the country" to put off a vote until next January. He also said he doubted whether either side to the dispute would want to do so.

Saltonstall, the assistant Republican leader, expressed a similar view. So did Sen. Dirksen (R-Ill.), a leading supporter of McCarthy. Dirksen said he felt the Senate was "almost compelled to take action of some kind" at the present session.

Knowland said it would "not be in the interest of either party, the Senate or the country" to put off a vote until next January. He also said he doubted whether either side to the dispute would want to do so.

Saltonstall, the assistant Republican leader, expressed a similar view. So did Sen. Dirksen (R-Ill.), a leading supporter of McCarthy. Dirksen said he felt the Senate was "almost compelled to take action of some kind" at the present session.

Knowland said it would "not be in the interest of either party, the Senate or the country" to put off a vote until next January. He also said he doubted whether either side to the dispute would want to do so.

Saltonstall, the assistant Republican leader, expressed a similar view. So did Sen. Dirksen (R-Ill.), a leading supporter of McCarthy. Dirksen said he felt the Senate was "almost compelled to take action of some kind" at the present session.

Knowland said it would "not be in the interest of either party, the Senate or the country" to put off a vote until next January. He also said he doubted whether either side to the dispute would want to do so.

Saltonstall, the assistant Republican leader, expressed a similar view. So did Sen. Dirksen (R-Ill.), a leading supporter of McCarthy. Dirksen said he felt the Senate was "almost compelled to take action of some kind" at the present session.

Knowland said it would "not be in the interest of either party, the Senate or the country" to put off a vote until next January. He also said he doubted whether either side to the dispute would want to do so.

Saltonstall, the assistant Republican leader, expressed a similar view. So did Sen. Dirksen (R-Ill.), a leading supporter of McCarthy. Dirksen said he felt the Senate was "almost compelled to take action of some kind" at the present session.

Knowland said it would "not be in the interest of either party, the Senate or the country" to put off a vote until next January. He also said he doubted whether either side to the dispute would want to do so.

Saltonstall, the assistant Republican leader, expressed a similar view. So did Sen. Dirksen (R-Ill.), a leading supporter of McCarthy. Dirksen said he felt the Senate was "almost compelled to take action of some kind" at the present session.

Knowland said it would "not be in the interest of either party, the Senate or the country" to put off a vote until next January. He also said he doubted whether either side to the dispute would want to do so.

Saltonstall, the assistant Republican leader, expressed a similar view. So did Sen. Dirksen (R-Ill.), a leading supporter of McCarthy. Dirksen said he felt the Senate was "almost compelled to take action of some kind" at the present session.

Knowland said it would "not be in the interest of either party, the Senate or the country" to put off a vote until next January. He also said he doubted whether either side to the dispute would want to do so.

Saltonstall, the assistant Republican leader, expressed a similar view. So did Sen. Dirksen (R-Ill.), a leading supporter of McCarthy. Dirksen said he felt the Senate was "almost compelled to take action of some kind" at the present session.

'SAFETY' DEMONSTRATION IN Kansas was shown graphically in the posters scattered around a car which crashed near Lawrence.

To Maintain Segregation School Amendment Asked

By HENDRIX CHANDLER BOCA RATON, Fla. (AP)—Acting Gov. Charley E. Johns of Florida proposed today that President Eisenhower call a special session of the Congress immediately to submit a constitutional amendment which would allow the states to maintain separate but equal public schools for the races.

Johns made the proposal in opening the annual Southern Governors' Conference. He urged the conference to make such a request of the President, or in the alternative to our responsibilities and that of the President of the United States and the national Congress should be likewise," Johns said.

"I feel that in doing this, we as the governors of the sovereign states of America will be acting up to our responsibilities and that of the President of the United States and the national Congress should be likewise," Johns said.

"Then came the decision of the schools must go."

"Then came the decision of the schools must go."

"Then came the decision of the schools must go."

"Then came the decision of the schools must go."

"Then came the decision of the schools must go."

"Then came the decision of the schools must go."

"Then came the decision of the schools must go."

"Then came the decision of the schools must go."

"Then came the decision of the schools must go."

"Then came the decision of the schools must go."

"Then came the decision of the schools must go."

"Then came the decision of the schools must go."

"Then came the decision of the schools must go."

"Then came the decision of the schools must go."

"Then came the decision of the schools must go."

"Then came the decision of the schools must go."

"Then came the decision of the schools must go."

"Then came the decision of the schools must go."

"Then came the decision of the schools must go."

"Then came the decision of the schools must go."

U. S. Drafting New Note On Downed Plane

Soviet Sounded Out About Future Policy

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—The State Department is drafting a new note to Russia on the shooting down of a U. S. Air Force plane, hoping to find out whether the Soviets would seriously like to avoid such incidents in the future.

There is an unusual absence of belligerence in the attitude of both the American and Soviet governments, despite their opposing versions of last Sunday's Far Eastern affair, which cost the life of one American aviator.

Only last Sunday Soviet Premier Georgi Malenkov expressed to U. S. Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen at a Moscow dinner the desire to make greater use of diplomacy in ironing out East-West differences. Malenkov said this means should be taken to prevent relatively minor problems from becoming major issues, according to a report from Bohlen to the State Department.

The new U. S. note, it is understood, will reflect the conciliatory tone in which President Eisenhower discussed the plane incident at his news conference yesterday. And it will be responsive to two paragraphs in a Russian note of last Monday which seemed to create a slight hope of avoiding such aerial clashes in future.

In that note, the Russian government expressed "regret" that what it called previous "violations of Soviet frontiers by U. S. military planes had led "to absolutely unjustified losses."

It then said it would be in the interest of both the Soviet Union and the United States "to take measures for the prevention of further violations of the Soviet state border by American aircraft." The note added that Russia expects the United States to give "appropriate instructions" to Air Force generals.

Diplomatic officials rejected the Russian claim that the attacks on American planes by Soviet fighters over Soviet territory. But they were studying with considerable interest Russia's proposal, however one-sided, that something be done.

Just what authorities said is difficult to foresee unless the Soviets are willing to give rigid instructions to restrain trigger-happy pilots from firing an American aircraft.

However, there is at least a serious possibility that the whole matter will be further explored through diplomatic channels.

However, there is at least a serious possibility that the whole matter will be further explored through diplomatic channels.

However, there is at least a serious possibility that the whole matter will be further explored through diplomatic channels.

However, there is at least a serious possibility that the whole matter will be further explored through diplomatic channels.

However, there is at least a serious possibility that the whole matter will be further explored through diplomatic channels.

However, there is at least a serious possibility that the whole matter will be further explored through diplomatic channels.

However, there is at least a serious possibility that the whole matter will be further explored through diplomatic channels.

However, there is at least a serious possibility that the whole matter will be further explored through diplomatic channels.

However, there is at least a serious possibility that the whole matter will be further explored through diplomatic channels.

However, there is at least a serious possibility that the whole matter will be further explored through diplomatic channels.

However, there is at least a serious possibility that the whole matter will be further explored through diplomatic channels.

However, there is at least a serious possibility that the whole matter will be further explored through diplomatic channels.

However, there is at least a serious possibility that the whole matter will be further explored through diplomatic channels.

However, there is at least a serious possibility that the whole matter will be further explored through diplomatic channels.

However, there is at least a serious possibility that the whole matter will be further explored through diplomatic channels.

However, there is at least a serious possibility that the whole matter will be further explored through diplomatic channels.

However, there is at least a serious possibility that the whole matter will be further explored through diplomatic channels.

However, there is at least a serious possibility that the whole matter will be further explored through diplomatic channels.

However, there is at least a serious possibility that the whole matter will be further explored through diplomatic channels.

However, there is at least a serious possibility that the whole matter will be further explored through diplomatic channels.

However, there is at least a serious possibility that the whole matter will be further explored through diplomatic channels.

ESTABLISHED DEC. 8, 1888.

(New Staff Photo by Tom Franklin—Hunts) on the memorial to our veterans at the Veterans Rest plot in Elmwood Cemetery. See report on the local observance of Veterans Day on the second front page.

New Name For Holiday

U. S. Marks 'Veterans Day'

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The nation paid tribute to the living and dead veterans of its nine war today in a day of respect newly designated as Veterans Day.

As in previous years, when Nov. 11 was named Armistice Day, the national tribute centered at the Arlington National Cemetery, just across the Potomac River from Washington, D. C.

There, Secretary of the Air Force Harold E. Talbot, as the designated representative of President Eisenhower, arranged to lay a wreath at the tomb of the unknown soldier. Veterans organizations planned a mass tribute to the nation's fallen soldiers of World War I and to all the nation's warriors.

The President himself planned to dedicate the Eisenhower memorial museum at Veterans Day ceremonies in his boyhood home, Abilene, Kan. The $25,000 museum, built with voluntary contributions, will house the President's mementoes of war and peace.

This first Veterans Day was selected by the Immigration Service as an appropriate occasion for the mass swearing-in of 50,000 newly naturalized citizens, most of them displaced from their European homes by Nazi or Russian armies.

Some 16,000 were to take their citizenship oaths in New York City, where Atty. Gen. Brownell was due to speak at two ceremonies. One in Brooklyn's Ebbets Field and the other in the Polo Grounds. Similar ceremonies were scheduled at other cities across the United States and in Hawaii, Guam and the Pacific, 81 servicemen and civilians became U. S. citizens. Lying west of the international date-line, Guam got the jump on continental United States with its citizenship rite.

Armistice Day began as an annual observance of the time at which hostilities ended in World War I — 11 a. m. Nov. 11, 1918. With support of national veterans' groups, the name was officially changed this year.

Rep. Rees (R-Kan.), more than any other man, helped push through the change in a move to make the name of the holiday more appropriate to its current meaning as a tribute to all war veterans.

His home town of Emporia adopted the name change on its own last year. Rees, finding the veterans' organizations lack the idea, pushed through Congress a bill to effect the change. Eisenhower approved it June 1. Strictly speaking, there are no national holidays in the United States, but Rees wrote the governors of all the states asking them to proclaim today as Veterans Day. At last count, 31 had done so or indicated they would.

'KISSING ROOM' NICE, BUT WILL IT PAY?

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A "kissing room" may be a fine, romantic thing for an airport but the city's budget makers can't figure out how to pay for it. Philadelphia's aviation director, Louis R. Inwood, wanted to include such a facility in the budget for International Airport after hearing reports from Mexico on the success of an airport "kissing room."

In budget hearings yesterday, Councilman Victor H. Blane said a room set aside for couples who "expect to need privacy" for their farewells was a fine thing, but, can the budget take it?

Inwood said he couldn't see any revenue derived from the facility.

Inwood said he couldn't see any revenue derived from the facility.

Inwood said he couldn't see any revenue derived from the facility.

Inwood said he couldn't see any revenue derived from the facility.

Inwood said he couldn't see any revenue derived from the facility.

Inwood said he couldn't see any revenue derived from the facility.

Inwood said he couldn't see any revenue derived from the facility.

Inwood said he couldn't see any revenue derived from the facility.

Inwood said he couldn't see any revenue derived from the facility.

Inwood said he couldn't see any revenue derived from the facility.

Inwood said he couldn't see any revenue derived from the facility.

Inwood said he couldn't see any revenue derived from the facility.

Inwood said he couldn't see any revenue derived from the facility.

Inwood said he couldn't see any revenue derived from the facility.

Inwood said he couldn't see any revenue derived from the facility.

Inwood said he couldn't see any revenue derived from the facility.

Inwood said he couldn't see any revenue derived from the facility.

Inwood said he couldn't see any revenue derived from the facility.

Inwood said he couldn't see any revenue derived from the facility.

EVENING PRAYER

Our heavenly Father, we are grateful for the high privilege of walking with Thee in our daily living. Grant that our feet may always walk in Thy holy way and that we shall be faithful to Thee in the common experience of every day life. In Jesus' name. Amen.

PROSPECT of 58th birthday causes only smiles from Mrs. Dwight Eisenhower, who will celebrate her anniversary next Sunday. She is shown at a surprise pre-birthday party given by the District of Columbia League of Republican Women. (AP Wirephoto).

OUR WEATHER

Mostly sunny today and tomorrow. Fair tonight. Low temperature this morning, 34 degrees. Low temperature expected tonight, 38 degrees. High temperature yesterday, 60 degrees. High temperature expected today, 62 degrees. High temperature expected tomorrow, 68 degrees. Sunrise, 6:33 a.m.; sunset, 5:20 p.m. More Weather Data on Page 6-A.

It's Up To You—This Year's United Appeal Goal Can Be Reached With Your Help

Table with columns for 'WHAT'S INSIDE' and 'THE DEMOCRATS IN CONGRESS are going to work out a tax program while eyeing the 1956 elections, according to Lou Scheider, author of the Trade Winds column. Turn to page 8A.'