Will Fight Commies Young Vietnamese To Be Called Up

Loc and his two Cabinet ministers ordered the call-up by May 15. It was not immediately announced how many of the 13 to 15 million Vietnamese in the French-occupied zones would be affected by the order.

It was the first time in the exhausting seven-year Indochina war that Viet Nam had called its young men in bulk into the armed forces.

The mobilization followed a government decree Saturday incorporating into Viet Nam's 300,000-man national army the 32,000 tough fighting men who formerly paid allegiance to the Cao Dai and Hoa Hao religious sects and the Binh Xuyen party.

The Cabinet—Acting Defense Minister Le Thanh and General Van Hinh—chief of the general staff are the other members—the Cabinet also froze approximately 100,000 Vietnamese volunteers now on active duty with the young nation's armed forces.

They were ordered to continue serving until further orders. The Cabinet lifted most of the exemptions from military service "in order to carry out the principle of equal and universal military duty for each citizen."

Court-martial boards were ordered set up to deal with draft dodgers and deserters. All citizens subject to military service were forbidden to leave the country.

Meanwhile, the French high command in Hanoi reported its troops at besieged Dien Bien Phu were waging a furious, bayonet charge counterattack on thousands of rebels trying to smash into the fortress from the east and south-east.

The immediate objective of the manning Vietnam assault appeared again to be a 1,200-foot-high hill overlooking the French fortress and only five eights of a mile from the center. The French seized the strategic height from the rebels in a surprise offensive Saturday and held it against four earlier big Vietnam attacks.

The Vietnams, armed with sub-machineguns, rifles, pistols, grenades and plastic containers of high explosives, charged up the jungle-covered hill into the heavy fire of French troops firmly holding a long series of winding trenches.

Brownell To Make Appeal

WASHINGTON (AP)—Atty. Gen. Brownell, with an appeal to the nation behind him, today takes to Capitol Hill his program for new laws to destroy the Communist party in this country.

He arranged to meet with the House Judiciary subcommittee which is considering anti-Red legislation, in the wake of his nationwide radio-TV address undertaken Friday night at the request of President Eisenhower.

The attorney general then said the FBI, the Justice Department and the courts are doing a good job in dealing with the Red men at home. But he declared new laws are needed "to destroy by

Sen. Griswold, Nebraska GOP Dies Suddenly

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Dwight P. Griswold (R-Nebr.), three times governor of his state and former director of the American anti-communist movement, died early today after a heart attack. He was 60.

Death, attributed to a coronary occlusion, came shortly after midnight at the naval hospital at suburban Bethesda, Md. Mrs. Griswold was at the bedside.

Griswold had been in the Senate since January 1953. He was elected to fill out two years remaining in the term of the late Sen. Kenneth S. Wherry. He had not announced publicly whether he would seek reelection this fall but had told friends he expected to be a candidate.

No change in the political lineup of the Senate is likely. The governor of Nebraska, Robert C. Croby, is a Republican and presumably will appoint a Republican successor to serve until the November election.

The Senate composition is now 46 Republicans, 48 Democrats and 4 Independents.

Griswold, although active in Republican political life for a quarter of a century, was named to several high positions in the Democratic administration of former President Truman. At the time of his appointment to head the Greek aid mission in June 1947, the White House said he had been selected because he was "a good man, forthright and an able administrator."

He was elected to three two-year terms as Nebraska governor in 1940, 1942 and 1944. While serving his third term, he unsuccessfully sought the Republican nomination for the U. S. Senate.

A big, plump, vigorous man, he liked fishing and hunting as among his favorite hobbies. He had played golf Saturday and again yesterday.

SUZAN BALL, DICK LONG. Up The Aisle After Santa Barbara Wedding

Suzan Ball Walks Down Aisle Without Crutches

Plucky Suzan declared: "I always knew I would get married without crutches, although no one else did."

Some 1,000 people crowded inside and outside the quaint little country church, and there was an audible gasp from the assemblage as Suzan entered the church without crutches. She walked firmly down the aisle with but a slight limp on the arm of her father, H. Dale Ball.

Long, 26, first saw his bride in a movie while he was in the Army in Japan four years ago. He was so much impressed. Later, when he got out of uniform and back at Universal-International Studios to resume his acting career, he saw the dark beauty sitting in the Church.

He introduced himself. She was on crutches at the time, she laid aside her crutches a few minutes before the ceremony.

The wedding was intensely dramatic, because everyone expected the bride to come down the aisle on crutches. But Suzan Ball, who she would walk down the aisle unaided, and that she did.

Although she had practiced only six days with her artificial leg, she laid aside her crutches a few minutes before the ceremony.

Formidable Intelligence System Aids McCarthy

(Sixth of a Series) BY BELMAN MORIN WASHINGTON (AP)—Where does Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy get his information?

The answer is that in the four years he has been hunting Reds, he has built a formidable intelligence system. It is based on a network of agents and informers, paid and unpaid, who dig up material from every corner of the United States, from confidential government files, even from foreign countries.

He has demonstrated time and again that he can quickly lay his hands on episodes—often long past—in the lives of men and women. His operation feeds on the skeleton in the closet, specially the political skeleton, but all kinds of skeletons interest him.

He has two main sources of information. He employs a staff of agents, many of them former FBI men, who earn more working for him than they could for the government. He also hires, as he needs them undercover operatives in foreign countries.

In his office he presides over a shadowy empire of personal histories, card-files cross-indexed as to names and cases. Files of dossiers, photographs, biographic copies, letters, newspaper clippings, memoranda.

He never knows what may be useful out of all this. He says that when he first brought his charges of Reds-in-government "I began to be swamped with tips; much of the stuff is worthless. But on the other hand some of it has proved very valuable."

An old newspaper clip, for example, came in handy recently. Last month commentator Edward R. Murrow conducted a television program critical of McCarthy. The senator promptly replied. He said Murrow had been a member of the National Advisory Council of Moscow University, summer session back in 1953. Murrow said he had been as-

Champ Snake Hunter Thinks He'll Retire

OKENE, Okla. (AP)—The champion hunter of the 15th annual Rattlesnake Roundup said today he was ready to retire after capturing the biggest rattler in the history of the event.

"This might be a good time to quit," said Russell Strayhorn, a rugged, bronzed outdoorsman who was the biggest rattler in the history of the event.

"At least my wife thinks so," Strayhorn 48, who lives at near-by Watonga, said the monster Texas diamondback he snared with her partner yesterday was the longest he had ever seen—75½ inches in length, deadly reptile. And he estimates he has caught 2,000 of them alive in his 15-year career as a man's arm—and as strong. We didn't take any chances—pinned him with a forked stick, snapped the steel snake-catcher behind his head and dropped him into a bag," the tempo.

The International Assn. of Rattlesnake Hunters. Billed as the world's most unusual sporting event, the hunt attracted an estimated 20,000 sportsmen from 26 states.

Strayhorn pocketed $51.50 auction proceeds for his champion, which he caught with H. H. Tomlinson, superintendent of Roman Nose state park, in the gypsum hills infested by hundreds of thousands of the venomous rattlers.

The wranglers had a busy day, bringing in 17 snakes. "We found the big one coiled and ready in a den that's usually empty," Strayhorn related. "His body must have been as big as a man's arm—and as strong. We didn't take any chances—pinned him with a forked stick, snapped the steel snake-catcher behind his head and dropped him into a bag," the tempo.

EVENING PRAYER

Heavenly Father, many of us, in this restless, modern day, rush about as if all our lives are lived on this side of the grave. Give us pause to think and realize that this life is temporary and is for preparation for that life eternal to which Thou hast appointed us through Jesus Christ. Amen

A MYSTERIOUS BLONDE who says she's a spy gets ready for jail

Arrested in Washington Friday on charges that she left California without permission while awaiting deportation for pro-Communist activities, Ludmila Sergeevna Mikalova, alias Mrs. Charles Wilson, told police today from Tokyo she wanted to go to jail for safety. Saturday she held a press conference. Dressed in a white headed evening gown and pink stole, she told police and reporters that she had been trained as a Soviet spy and had been paid as much as $1,000 a month for spying on the West Coast. She added, however, that she flopped on her one assignment. Headed for jail, she changed into a suit and handed her evening gown to a professional bondman, Leonard Nipori. She thought she would be safe from Red reprisals while in jail. The FBI does not appear to put much stock in her story. (AP Wirephotos).
