S. Carolina Land Candidates In Marion

Today's Addresses Mark Half-Year Post In Tour Of Senatorial Candidates Issues Debated.

Marion, S. C., July 12.—Col. L. Blease, picturesque former senator and governor, in a Senate campaign speech here today said he deplored the fact that "South Carolina's tax problems" had been settled "on the seventh floor of the Jefferson hotel."

The Jefferson is a Columbia hotel often frequented by the state's lawmakers. It was mentioned often during the 1930 legislative campaign when the highway bond act was regarded as an issue.

Blease made the remark in urging that voters be allowed to decide questions of moment. "If settlers had not come from the seventh floor of the Jefferson hotel and had been presented the people to vote on, we wouldn't be in such a bad fix today," he elaborated upon this statement.

Half-Year Mark Today's meeting marked the half-year mark in the campaign tour. Blease is the 2nd county to bear the ascription.

A "challenge to anybody to point to the member of the United States Senate who has done more for his state or nation than I have" was issued by R. D. Smith, 34 years old, from South Carolina. In continuing his campaign, he said he would be a member of the farm board, Smith, ranking minority member of the agriculture committee, said.

Smith expects to become chairman of the committee on agriculture. He is organized to it.

Smith was received by Senator Smith for citizens of the state called "senators," returns to Senator Smith.

After landing the Democratic nomination, Action H. Williams of Florence, said "I have no faith in temporary relief measures. They only a pip on the surface. We must settle the problems as we see them." He advocated vigorous economic and prohibition reform.

Fishing Topic At Conservation Meet

Merobeth, July 12.—(AP)—Differences between long net and other types of fishermen were discussed here today during the semi-annual meeting of the North Carolina board of conservation and development here today.

The discussion followed various petitions brought before the board to exclude certain waters from the operation of long net fishing. The board of fishermen was selected to consider the long net fishing and opponents for the purpose of submitting a compromise on the subject to the board.

W. C. Fearing, member of the board and president of the board, presided at the meeting which was completed today, when reports from directors and the board's various committees will be heard.

Among the speakers today were Elmer Higgins, in charge of the division of scientific inquiry of the bureau of fisheries, and W. C. Boker, chief sanitary engineer of the state board of health.

News Of The World

Not Certain Whether Post Of Chairman Of Executive Committee Will Be Kept Up

New York, July 12.—It appeared to be not at all certain today whether the post of chairman of the national executive committee, created by the state of the Democratic national party.

Reports that Shover's position would be vacated and eliminated were met with a shrug by Governor Roosevelt, who said that "South Carolina's tax problems" had been settled "on the seventh floor of the Jefferson hotel."

New Officers Of Rotary Club Are Installed

Terrell Becomes President And Pledges Efforts To Expanding Development Of Rotary.

Old officers of the Charlotte Rotary club left their swag and new leaders took up their tasks for the coming year at today's weekly luncheon meeting of the organization held at the Charlotte Chamber of Commerce.

Edgar A. Terrell, incoming president, who has just returned from the international Rotary convention in Seattle, Wash., said: "I am convinced from my observations at the international convention that the future of Rotary depends not on the organization's international character, but upon its individual effectiveness."

His year's term of office will be devoted toward the development and expansion of its individual effectiveness.

Other officers who took their oaths were: George Ivey, former president, who automatically became chairman of the club; J. H. Hutto, secretary, succeeding Rufus M. Johnson, and Guy A. ...

Mr. Ivey, retiring president, congratulated the new officers and gave a general report covering his year's term. He said he was pleased to see the club's expansion during his term of office.

Personal appreciation as well as that of the club as a whole was extended to Douglas ...

The last regular meeting of the club was held on December 31, 1931, showing a balance in Reynolds' account of $48,192.20.

Under the terms of the will of R. J. Reynolds, the 20-year-old aviator was given an allowance of $50,000 a year, most of which came from interest and dividends on his personal, municipal, school and bank stocks.

Today's entertainment feature was a piano by Mrs. Ethel Holmes.
