No Evidence Found Against Clark

By HARRY SNYDER

WASHINGTON (AP)—A House Judiciary subcommittee, in a disputed report, criticized Justice Tom C. Clark today for declining to testify after he joined the Supreme Court but said it had turned up no proof of wrongdoing by Clark while he was attorney general.

JUSTICE CLARK

The document drew immediate fire from Rep. Byron G. Rogers (D-Colo.), one of the first subcommittee members, who said Chairman Keating (R-Vt.) pulled a "sneak play" by his "unwarranted political release" of his proposed libelous report.

The report, dealing with the subcommittee's inquiry last year into operations of the Justice Department, said the investigators were "troubled" because some controversial actions were traced back to Clark. Clark was attorney general in 1945-49 before going to the Supreme Court.
