Silence Toward Corruption Charge Seems to Work for Administration

By NORMAN KEMPSTER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Backstairs at the White House: President Nixon and his key aides have met accusations of corruption in the administration with studied silence. The public, by and large, has responded with a stifled yawn.

Washington Window

The administration strategy appears to be to sit tight and let critics try to make a case. The opposition will get no help from an unguarded comment by a top official.

The accusations of political spying, sabotage and favors for political contributions remain largely unproved. As John D. Ehrlichman, Nixon's top domestic aide, said Sunday, there "are a lot of charges, not much proof, not any proof ..."

There are, indeed, a lot of charges. Some of them involve officials as high in the White House councils as Nixon's appointments secretary, Dwight Chapin. Chapin dismissed a report that he was the contact man for attempts to sabotage Democratic candidates by calling it "hearsay."

Ziegler Dismisses Charges

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler this week lumped all charges together and dismissed them: "I will not dignify with comment stories based on hearsay, character assassination, innuendo, guilt by association ... That is the White House position. That is my position."

When a newsman told Ziegler his statement was not a denial, the press secretary simply repeated it.

Asked at his most recent news conference for his comments on charges of corruption, Nixon changed the focus slightly, referring to Sen. George S. MGovern's claim that this administration was the "most corrupt in history."

"I'm not going to dignify such comments ... I think the responsible members of the Democratic Party will be turned off by this kind of campaigning," he said.

It is a fact that a group of men, including at least one person on the payrool of the Nixon campaign committee, were arrested last June inside the Democratic national headquarters in Washington's Watergate building. Nixon decried the break-in and denied personal knowledge of it.

"One thing that has always puzzled me about it is why anybody would have tried to get anything out of the Watergate," Nixon said. "Be that as it may, that decision having been made at a lower level, with which I had no knowledge, and, as I pointed out ..."

At that point the President was interrupted and did not return to that train of thought, saying instead that the FBI had thoroughly investigated the Watergate incident.

It also is a fact that Clarence D. Palmby, a former assistant agriculture secretary, helped negotiate the big grain deal with the Soviet Union then accepted a vice presidency of Continental Grain Co., one of the firms selling large amounts of wheat to the Russians. Palmby denied any wrongdoing.

Nixon said the deal was not final until it was announced so Palmby "would have been very unwise to rely on the possibility that there was going to be a deal until one was made."

The President added: "If he did rely on it (inside information), he probably, in this instance, came out well. He could have come out the other way."

The key question of whether Palmby acted unethically by changing jobs in the midst of the negotiations was left unanswered.

Nixon's strategy appears to be successful. The corruption charges have not caught on as an election issue. The public appears so far to have relegated the whole thing to the category of hair-splitting squabbles among politicians.

Charges of corruption appear to have lost much of their clout as issues since 1952 when the Republican ticket with Nixon as the vice presidential nominee campaigned on a slogan of no more "Korea, communism and corruption."

Americans Can Sail Seas in Style On One of 1000 Scheduled Cruises

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

Americans who enjoy sailing the seven seas in style will be able to choose from more ships and schedules during the 1972-73 cruise season.

Over 1,000 cruises already have been listed for the fall-winter-spring months by the major steamship companies — mainly foreign flag — competing for the lucrative American market. They range from two-day sailings to the Bahamas for about $100 to round-the-world voyages lasting more than three months for more than $100,000.

Once again, the big luxury liners have been diverted from regular services to cash in on the cruise boom. In addition, nearly a dozen new or refitted ships will join the more than 90 liners already in cruise service from ports in the United States and nearby islands.

New York remains the major seaport but Florida and California ports are offering new ships and increased sailings as are some of the so-called warm water ports in the Caribbean this year.

Gain in Popularity

Miami and Port Everglades have been gaining in popularity, particularly with cruise passengers from the midwest and southern states. It's a two-to-three day run up and down the coast by ships based in New York and the Atlantic can be rough and cold in the winter while the Florida ports are only hours by plane from most major cities.

Numerous time-saving air/sea packages are offered by airlines and steamship companies. Passengers can fly to and from the port where their ship is based or fly one way and sail the other.

Passengers also have a wide variety of special sailings — such as cruises to nowhere, for singles only, for bridge players, music lovers, Christmas shopping and various holidays, etc.

The 65,000-ton Queen Elizabeth 2 has scheduled two special air/sea cruises to Israel this spring in connection with the 25th anniversary celebration of the Jewish state. The Cunard Lines' luxury liner also has 13 Caribbean cruises listed this fall and winter, with sailings from New York, Boston, Norfolk and Port Everglades and ranging from three to 16 days.

The French Lines's flagship France is scheduled for 10 cruises also from New York, Boston, Norfolk and Port Everglades to the Caribbean, South America, Africa and the Mediterranean. It also has a special sailing from Cannes in April for a silver anniversary call on Israel.

Hundreds of regular and special cruises out of New York to Bermuda, Bahamas, West Indies, South America, Africa, Mediterranean and other destinations have been listed by Holland America Cruises, Swedish American, Norwegian America, Hapag-Lloyd, Chandris-American, Greek, Italian, Home and Flagship Linés among others.

From Miami, Norwegian, Caribbean, Royal Caribecan, Carnival Cruise, Commodore Cruise, Eastern Steamship, Costa and Sun Lines also offer scores of special winter cruises in addition to regular year-round schedules. Cruises range from two-day sailings to the Bahamas (from about $100) to 21-day cruises with ports of call in the Caribbean, Mexico, and Central and South America.

Eight liners will operate regular services out of Port Everglades this winter, including two newcomers, while at least 20 others make calls to embark, or disembark passengers. Sailings include three-to-45-day voyages to the Bahamas, Caribbean, Mexico, South America, Africa, Europe, Mediterranean, and the West Coast and even lpnger cruises to the South Seas, Far East and around the world.

Cruise programs out of Los Angeles and San Francisco also have been expanded with at least six ships making their debut in U.S. service sailing from the west coast ports.

Destinations include Mexico, the West Indies, South America, Africa, Mediterranean, Black Sea, South Pacific, the Orient and Hawaii in the listings by Pacific Far East Line, American President Line, Prudential-Grace (all U.S. flag), Princes Cruises, Sitmar Cruises, P & O and Royal Viking Line.

APL's schedule features a 95-day world cruise aboard the President Wilson with prices ranging from $3,235 per person double to $100,940 for the top deluxe four-room suite.

Must Leave

CANBERRA (UPI) — Immigration Minister Alexander Forbes announced today that Australia has decided to deport British pop star Joe Cocker and six members of his group unless they leave willingly.

They were fined Tuesday on drug charges.

Forbes said he signed the deportation order after considering the court verdict. He said unless the seven left Australia voluntarily, authorities would expel them forcibly.

"I have done this because this government takes a very serious view of such offenses," Forbes said. "This is especially so when the offenses are committed by persons who are in a position to have a profound influence on many young Australians."
