Twitty Sees Legislative Fight To End Fee Pay for Sheriffs

Constitution State News Service SAVANNAH—The fee system for paying Georgia sheriffs will come under fire in the upcoming session of the General Assembly when the introduction of a bill to pay all sheriffs by salary. House Floor Leader Frank Twitty said here Friday.

Twitty and State Sen. Carl Sanders spoke to a pre-legislative forum sponsored by the Georgia State Chamber of Commerce and the Savannah Chamber of Commerce.

Twitty said that the bill would not specify the salaries—leaving that up to the counties. He said that specification of salaries killed a similar bill in the last Legislature.

Twitty also said that bills to increase taxes would be introduced in the next Legislature "but they will not be sponsored by the administration."

The floor leader said that sponsors of legislation calling for $1,000 per year increase in teachers' salaries and other bills calling for spending more money would probably be the ones who introduced the tax increase bills.

Twitty said that the administration is not against the proposals contained in the bills, but that the administration believes that such improvements as can be made without tax increases should receive its support.

W. Cam Mitchell of Hampton, director of the State Chamber of Commerce's "governmental affairs" division, is acting as moderator at the forums. The two legislators and Chamber of Commerce officials are touring the state discussing possible legislation which will come up in the January session of the Legislature.

Salaried Magistrate For Clarke Is Upheld

The Georgia Supreme Court has approved a salaried magistrate, substituted for justice of the peace courts operating on a fee system, for Clarke County.

The high court voted 5-to-2 to affirm a Clarke County Superior Court ruling that a 1960 legislative act setting up a magistrate's court for the county is constitutional.

Dr. William Rottersman told a group in Atlanta Friday night that "gifted children are being discriminated against" and urged special classes and opportunities for such children.

Speaking to a meeting of the Metropolitan Association for Gifted Children in the All-Saints Episcopal Church parish house, Rottersman said that the American society is more concerned with the problem of the mentally handicapped and the environmental welfare of "our elephants, or monkeys, and our reptiles" than for gifted children.

Borrowing a quotation, Rottersman, Atlanta psychiatrist who is chairman of the Governor's Advisory Committee on Mental Institutions said: "There is no greater inequality than the equal treatment of unequals."

5,000 IN AREA

Rottersman addressed about 75 members of the association, which is seeking the beginnings of a gifted-child educational program for some 5,000 children who live in the metropolitan area.

He said the nation is faced with an educational crisis and charged that "our anti-intellectual school system... which places a greater premium on brawn than brains may yet contribute to the demise of our American way of life."

The psychiatrist suggested that the best place to start improving educational processes lies in the realm of the gifted child.

PARENTS ASK QUESTIONS

Parents present questioned Rottersman about some of their own problems after his speech. One parent asked:

"What do you do about a four-year-old who can read the sports page of a paper and in the first grade reads 'Run Fluff, run...'"

Dr. Rottersman seemed to favor teaching which would bring together children of equal abilities. He warned against the possible personality problems resulting from "skipping grades."

The race for president is over and although some of us agree, and others of us disagree, with the results—we are probably all happy that the campaign is over.

AND ALTHOUGH

I disagree with the newspaper editorials and writers who write unkind statements about me in regards to my fighting and speaking out for my convictions and beliefs in the fight that I recognize as a fight for survival, it is well to see them in action, brought on I suppose, by someone rubbing a sore spot.

IT MATTERS NOT

what they write about me—let the fly—let it go. I do resent very much the unkind and unfair remarks directed against those who attend our patriotic meetings. Using the words racist, group of peculiar people, etc. is referring to prominent and responsible leaders of our city, religious, professional, labor, educational and business leaders who support this fight for freedom is both distasteful and unwarranted.

Farming Isn't a Dying Industry — It's a Giant, Campbell Says Here

Farming is a long way from being dead or dying, State Agriculture Commissioner Paul Campbell told the Northside Kiwanis Club Friday at their annual farm-city week program.

Campbell said the amount of money invested in agriculture in America—$200 billion—is the largest amount invested in any single industry. He said it amounts to two-thirds of the total value of all stocks listed on the New York stock exchange.

However, Campbell said farmers net only $11 billion on their investment—a 5 per cent return, which he described as inadequate.

At the meeting, Campbell declined to comment on the rejection by Georgia voters of the constitutional amendment that would have put him on the State Board of Regents and whether he voted for the Democratic national ticket in the election.

"She is very thrilled with the result and proud of her grandson," Fitzgerald said.

Registrar Quits Over Segregation

COLQUITT—Segregation of Negro voters by setting up a polling place for them in the basement of the courthouse in Terrell County prompted a member of the registration board to resign.

Terrell County is under a federal court order not to discriminate against Negroes after a federal judge ruled they had been kept off voting lists because of racial bias.

Superior Court Judge Walter Geer said James G. Raines, chairman of the Terrell County Board of Registrars, resigned in protest over segregated polling booths. Raines said separate voting booths violated the spirit of the federal court order against discrimination.

Geer said registrars have no authority over conduct of elections and Raines was stepping beyond his in trying to say how they should be held.

The judge said he had been informed that 20 or more white persons voted in the basement as well as some Negroes and that a Negro was permitted to vote in the booth set up for white persons in the grand jury room in the courthouse.
