

THE CHARLOTTE NEWS

Thomas L. Robinson	Provident and Dublisher
Brodie S. Griffith
R. J. Alander	Advertising Director
Cecil Prince
Thomas G. Fesperman	Managing Editor
W. W. Sirmon	Circulation Manager

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 2, 1955

Intramurals: Athletics For Everybody

THE number of Charlotte junior high schools is increasing. The student population of each is decreasing. The money to support interscholastic athletic programs, derived chiefly from student ticket sales, consequently is being reduced, so much so that junior high school principals recommend that interscholastic programs be supplanted by intramural activities, confining inter-school events to senior highs.

It is a good plan now It would have been a good plan even before the money problem inevitably edged in This is not to say that interscholastic programs are faulty. But intramurals can do for the many what interscholastics do for the few. And if the City School Board must from the money ought to go into a program that will benefit the most students.

-FOREIGN POLICY: A POLITICAL TINDERBOX-

Pious GOP Attitude Inflames Demo Memories Of 1952

had an excellent record in this

Civic Responsibility: Embarrassing

liely promise to do their duty and obey the law. This was precisely the sense of Councilman James S. Smith's resolution pledging each member of the city's governing body to "put his own house in order with regard to smoke abatement" and "back up the enforcement of any smoke abatement ordinance now in existence or may be hereafter adopted." It was adopted unanimously — after some grumbling about newspaper smoke-stacks by Councilman Herbert H. Baxter. Perhaps a formal resolution was necessary, in view of the lack of enthusiasm some councilmen have for the enforcement of smoke abatement measures. But

IT IS a slightly ludicrous commentary on the state of municipal morality when city councilmen feel they must publicly promise to do their duty and obey the law.

This was precisely the sense of Councilman James S. Smith's reception plade, a round the station house when the alarm cilman James S. Smith's reception plade, and the station house when the alarm cilman James S. Smith's reception plade, and the station house when the alarm cilman James S. Smith's reception plade is the station house when the alarm cilman state of the station house when the alarm cilman state of the station house when the alarm cilman state of the station house when the station had n Public office is said to be a public trust. When individuals assume that trust willingly they are expected to live up to all of the accompanying responsibilities. They are expected to support the law too —just like the common people.

—just like the common people.

It is too bad that certain rather glaring civic responsibilities are so little understood that they must be recommitted to memory—and to paper—by the Council at this late date. There must have been something terribly embarrassing about the whole thing.

Coach Barclay: The Forgotten Adage

Loach Barclay: The Forgotten Adage

IF DRAMATISTS rather than alumni charted futures of football coaches George Barclav might save his UNC job by pulling off a mannificent upset of Duke at Chapel Hill temorrow. You know—coach in trouble, team inspired, scores great upset, carries coach on shoulders, his contract renewed, his wife smilling again, happy ending and all that. But there's more than the turn of a TV dial between soap opera and football. The one turns trouble into happiness, the other defeat into unemployed coaches. One's make-helieve, one's business.

Although we do feel some of the sympathy Coach Barclay says he doesn't want, we are in no mood to sing sad songs for him. True, the coach is of good report. He's popular with his students, takes a healthy interest in campus affairs, sees that his charges play hard, and, as A Stamp For Grandma Moses?

GRANDIA MOSES, a grand old lady in years, but a fairly young figure in the art world, had an exhibition of her work Nov. 27 in New York. Wine. Wine Would, Dave Garroway's able television vehicle, put a couple of its 72 cameras on the scene. As they ground away, the famous artist was interviewed by actress Lillian Gish. Suddenly, in the course of conversation, Miss Gish suggested brightly that the Post Office Dept. issue a stamp commemorating frandma's contribution to the nation's cultural heritage.

Lillian Gish. Suddenly, in the course of conversation, Miss Gish suggested brightly that the Post Office Dept. issue a stamp commemorating Grandma's contribution to the nation's cultural heritage.

It was and is a delightful idea. Historical events, various organizations and US. heroes have had stamps issued in their honor. These commemoratives intheir honor. These commemoratives intheir honor. These commemoratives intheir honor these commemoratives intheir honor and many of her winter scenes would be suitable reproduction as a Yuletide statute of the suitable reproduction as a Yuletide statute of the suitable reproduction as a Yuletide statute of the suitable reproduction as a Yuletide statute.

THEY SAY

 ${f A}^{ m LL}$ TOO frequently you hear people begin a statement with . . . "They any variety in it.

Where it ends, no one can tell.

Neither can anyone tell what damage such a statement can do.

Facts are facts and opinions are opinions, and, as such, can be judged for just what they are. But what does one do with generalization? Generalizations are opinions, stated as facts, based usually on a few actual incidents in the writer's or speaker's experience—and mostly on pre-

Generalizations, though they seem to hypnotize a lot of people into belief, can be punctured like toy balloons by anyone who hasn't let his thinking apparatus run

If more people used "I believe" or "it is my opinion" or "it is sometimes true" instead of "it is so" and "it is always true." there would at least be a little less trouble in the world. And possibly fewer gullible people.

gullible people.

Every human being is an individual—each cast from a little different mole—
the reacting a bit differently to situations and even, sometimes, themselves reacting in various ways to the same situation at different times. That makes rather impossible statements like "all Democrats are warmongers," or "all Republicans are money grabbers," or "all children are reflections of their parents,"

Generalizing is a way of saying there isn't.

Candidates' Character To Set Character Of Campaign

A L'HOUGH words like "modrate, constructive, mon-partiesm" are hard to define, it does not, follow that they do the sea of the sea of the sea of the three is in fact every indication that these adjectives express qualities which a preponderant majority are looking for in the met president. We need not be gle too much over the definitions. There are lots of things in this world which are hard to define in the abstract and yet are obvious enough in the concrete.

XEF_XX_EGG

Real Facts Vs. Rosy Picture: The Debate Will Go On

'We Want To Spread Technical Know-How'

Drew Pearson's Merry-Go-Round

ublic

Before the controversy died down, however, Schrele's name was drazged firmough every. Schrele's name was drazged firmough as public health chief when his term stalk. Meanwhile, Scheele has got wind that body, he may lose his job, and is doing his and best to increatine himself with the Research best of increased heat of increasing his more trying to figure the may lose his job, and is doing his and best to increatine himself with the Research best of the more trying to figure trying to figure the many lose his polymer trying to figure the many lose himself and the substitution of the more trying to figure the start of the more trying to figure the start of the more trying to figure the many lose himself and the substitution of th

White House To Ditch Dr. Scheele