TEXAS-NEW YORK BATTLEFIELD ON WHICH DEMOCRATS WILL DECIDE NEXT PARTY LEADER

By SILLIMAN EVANS.

Texas and New York are the battle grounds upon which the members of the next Democratic national convention will be named.

Politically these two states represent the geometric lines of perfect antithesis.

Only upon one plane do these lines intersect. That is at the base. The Democratic party is supreme in both.

The party name stands for party consistency. The Democratic party of New York is as different from the Democratic party of Texas as the temperate zone from the arctic.

The party name stands for party consistency. The Democratic party of New York is as different from the Democratic party of Texas as the temperate zone from the arctic.

Albany, first state to give in the roll call, will nominate Oscar W. Underwood, Arkansas or Arizona, both states to Texas, will be asked to vote to the nomination of...
