College Sports: Lumps In The Pudding

NO MATTER how tasty a pudding may be, if it is spoiled by lumps in it, there are always lumps in it. Such is the case with the increasingly appetizing athletic menu at North Carolina State College...

State Is Failing In Its Responsibility

THE boiling controversy over stop signs at two entrances to Cotswold School must not be permitted to lapse into hair-splitting historicisms. The central problem can be stated quite simply: It is the protection of the lives and limbs of children attending the school...

Negative Thoughts On Positive Thinking

AMID the eeriest days of a decade among the nation's pundits have suddenly come down with several cases of positive thinking. With optimism suffusing normally pessimistic natures, they see rainbows of peace beginning to arch through what appear to be lowering clouds of war...

Strange Role Of One-Eyed Neutralists

THE SOVIET has asked the United Nations to shut up about Hungary. Evidently the most hardened executioner likes a bit of privacy as he applies the axe. The deed itself troubles him little, but it is unsettling to have so many disapproving people watching. He thinks rightly that they resent him and remember him with the axe...

THE DENTISCALPS

THE word "toothpick" has always seemed rather delicate to us, for some reason, and while looking through a dictionary of early English (recently published by the Philadelphia Library) we discovered that a toothpick was once called a dentiscalp...

'Indispensable' Dulles: The One-Man State Department

By MARQUIS CHILDS

WASHINGTON The bulletin on the illness of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles have been very much like those which came from Walter Reed Hospital when President Eisenhower underwent an intestinal operation there in June...

his desk in the State Department. Nevertheless, in the cancelleries of almost every capital of the world, there is anxious speculation about Dulles' successor, since it is assumed that a man who has had a major operation for cancer at the age of 68 cannot carry on for long in the incredibly demanding job of secretary of state. This is a harsh fact of today's deeply troubled world...

Nasser Found With Busted Flush

A Shattering Soviet Triumph

By JOSEPH & STEWART ALSOP

WASHINGTON The Soviet Union has now scored a gigantic victory in the Middle East, more than important even to compensate for the Kremlin's severe setback in the satellite area of Eastern Europe...

while the Israelis suffered only a few score casualties. The object of the Israelis, and of course of the British and French, too, was to topple Col. Nasser from his throne as unoficial emperor of Pan-Arabia. This object had in fact been attained by the Israeli victory in Sinai...

Such much is clear. Even the administration policymakers, the almost hysterical emotions generated by pique against the British and French are now being directed to subsidize, in this calmer atmosphere, the magnitude of the Kremlin's triumph...

EDEN OPPOSED Against this carefully arranged background of menace, Bulganin sent his so-called ultimatum to London and Paris demanding an immediate cease-fire. Both the British and French governments had already been thoroughly softened up by American pressure...

FOUNDATION STONE

The main success was owing to the Israeli, rather than to the British or French. The foundation stone of Egyptian prestige and influence throughout the Arab countries has always been the belief that Egypt's Chief of State possessed serious military power...

Even so, the British and French might have hoped for American support. But President Eisenhower, while opposing Soviet intervention in the Middle East, was also saying the same things to London and Paris that Moscow was saying...

DOUBLE ADVANTAGE

In the Sinai Peninsula and the Gaza Strip, 12,000 to 15,000 Israelis took on 25,000 to 30,000 Egyptians. The Egyptians enjoyed the double advantage of defending prepared positions and possessing rather better and more ample equipment...

Drew Pearson's Merry-Go-Round

IF YOU'VE ever talked to Fremont Bemis, you can understand how difficult it was for him to pledge the evacuation of the Sinai Peninsula over which the tribes of Israel marched when Moses led them out of Egypt 4,000 years ago, back to the promised land...

I did not understand why. As one who lived in a country where no one would dream of trying to cultivate the deserts of New Mexico and Arizona, it was hard for me to realize why the Negev Desert where Ben-Gurion lived should be cherished as if it were the Garden of Eden...

commissioner for Germany and now chairman of Chase Manhattan Bank in New York, one of the nation's largest. There is every indication that Dulles means to return to the office in which he has worked tirelessly and in which he considers himself indispensable. The President gives every indication of holding the same view and he has cheered Dulles in his intention of returning to work at the earliest possible moment.

FARTHER AND FASTER

If the secretary were to decide to retire, one of the three men whom Dulles has named as his successors probably would succeed him. Certainly no one in that office could work harder than Ben-Gurion. No one could travel farther and faster than he has done...

SHORT TENURE Outsiders brought into the department have been reluctant to stay for more than short periods. An able economist-banker, Herbert V. Prochnow of Chicago, has been deputy under secretary for foreign policy...

HERBERT HOOPER JR. A Slim Prester

For three years career officer Livingston Merchant served as assistant secretary for Europe, one of the most exacting posts in the department. In May he was made ambassador to Canada, a relatively quiet position, and his deputy, Burke Elbrick, has been acting assistant since then...

There has been an acting assistant secretary for Latin America, career officer R. R. Rubottom, since Henry F. Holland resigned in September to go to work in the campaign for the Republican National Committee.

They are handicapped by the requirement under law that they have no more than six months abroad if they are to maintain their retirement and other privileges. This, together with the increasing strain, has made for a high turnover.

The Sea That Binds

U. S. Astride Two Horses

By WALTER LIPPMANN

THE Atlantic ocean has always been, and may expect always to be, involved. For the Atlantic Ocean, contrary to what was once the opinion of the Atlantic community, is not a sea which divides America from Europe but one which binds them together.

SETTLING DIFFERENCES

The members of the defensive union have important interests, which in varying degrees they regard as vital, that extend beyond the Atlantic community into the Pacific, into Asia and into Africa. Here there are differences as to what is vital, as to what should be done, as to how it should be done...

HARD CORE

It is a help in trying to understand the alliance to look first at its hard core. This is a defensive union of the North Atlantic area, primarily of British, French and the Low Countries in Europe, of Canada and the United States in North America. The inner core is, as regards defense against external attack, intimately connected with the whole Atlantic community of nations...

POPULAR BELIEF

The inner core, that is to say the military alliance within the Atlantic community, is bound together for the common defense by ties that are stronger than the ties that bind a treaty or the terms of a policy. It is bound together, one may say, by the nature of things we have learned to know it over two centuries of historic experience. In great wars, the nations on the two sides of the North

The unending task of diplomacy on both sides of the Atlantic is to see to it that when the allies diverge, they do not separate, that they settle their differences before they import their defensive unity within the Atlantic community.

In the long run the cardinal task of the Atlantic alliance is to work out a new relationship between the Atlantic community and the nations which are emerging from colonial status. During the disturbed period of the Franco-British intervention in Egypt, an influential official was saying in Washington that we could not ride two horses much longer — what our ties to Western Europe and our sympathies with the revolt against colonialism. He was, I believe, profoundly mistaken. To ride those two horses is just what we have to do. It is our interest, and it is our duty, and if one may use grandiose words, it is our mission to be at once ally of the West and its principal mediator, seeking out accommodations by which the liberation of the subject peoples can be accomplished without precipitating a world war.

Ben-Gurion Explains His Love Of Land
