Red 'Sniping' at Stalin Explodes Into Barrage

MOSCOW, Feb. 18.—(AP)—The Soviet hierarchy's growing campaign against the works and acts of Joseph Stalin took a dramatic turn today as the Russian press and radio loosed a direct attack against the once revered leader.

The unprecedented attack appeared in the text of a free-swinging speech by First Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan at the twentieth Congress of the Soviet Communist party.

The speech, which denounced Stalin's political and economic writings by name, was not printed until more than 48 hours after Mikoyan spoke. This indicated party leaders gave careful thought before releasing it to the public.

Following the lead of the party chief, Nikita S. Khrushchev and others in the Soviet hierarchy, Mikoyan extolled the merits of collective leadership.

Khrushchev, who took over Stalin's post as the party's first secretary, set the tone of the Congress in his 50,000-word keynote speech Tuesday when he blasted the one-man rule idea.

In his speech Mikoyan rapped Stalin on several counts.

1. He declared the former Premier's writings ignored the history of the last two decades and called for new teachings of communism.

2. He assailed treason charges Stalin brought many years later against the one-time heroes of the 1918 Bolshevik Revolution.

3. He declared Russian foreign policy had become active, flexible and calm after Stalin's death in March, 1953.

STATE NEWS ROUNDUP

Brinkley Sees 4 Problems Before Virginia's Farmers

ABINGDON, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Virginia's Commissioner of Agriculture, Parke C. Brinkley, told a House Agricultural subcommittee here today that Virginia farmers faced four major problems.

He listed the problems as low farm prices, the surplus situation, soil and water conservation and the meeting of market demands by the farmers. Committee members met here today to hear opinions on how to protect the family-size farm.

In connection with the surplus problem, Brinkley suggested that some surplus food be stock-piled in areas where residents of metropolitan areas might go in case of an enemy attack. The nation's farmers would be responsible for feeding these people in such an event, he said.

Three farmers who also testified before the committee presented a dismal picture of the small farm situation.

It was the second congressional hearing in Virginia in as many days.

VETERANS HEARD

Yesterday veterans with problems in obtaining government loans through the Veterans Administration and the Voluntary Home Mortgage Credit Program aired their complaints at a seven-and-one-half hour hearing by a House veterans affairs subcommittee in Staunton.

That subcommittee was told two of the greatest problems confronting area veterans in obtaining government loans are these:

(1) The length of time involved and, (2) a discount, 2 per cent or more, most loan companies demand of the seller, lender or real estate agent in the case of a guaranteed loan.

Subcommittee Chairman Representative Edward Edmondson (D-Okla.) promised prompt action to any future loan applicants and to those applicants not now getting service.

The resolution was sent by night letter to Delegate Paul W. Manns, of Bowling Green, so he can beat the deadline on new legislation Monday in the General Assembly.

Big Coalition To Challenge Greek Premier

Nation-Wide Elections To Be Held Tomorrow

ATHENS, Feb. 18.—(AP)—A coalition of seven opposition parties ranging from right wing to Red challenges the government of Premier Constantine Karamanlis tomorrow in nation-wide elections.

The coalition, called the Democratic Union, charges that Karamanlis is a puppet of Britain and the United States.

It has attacked the premier over the Cyprus issue and has demanded a foreign policy independent of the West.

Karamanlis termed the opposition coalition "monstrous" and claimed that its election would unleash political storms in Greece.

Already, the premier declared yesterday, Moscow has "won the round." Karamanlis said that creation of the coalition "has made the Communists respectable again."

Greece outlawed the Communist party nine years ago.

Editor Scores Interposition View of North

ATLANTA, Feb. 19.—(AP)—The man who emphasized the doctrine of interposition as a means of combatting racial integration says the excitement it is now causing is mild compared with a similar stir a century ago.

In an address to Atlanta lawyers last night, James J. Kilpatrick, editor of The Richmond News Leader, criticized "Northern papers," which, he said, "now look upon us with a holier than thou attitude and say what bigoted . . . people we are in the South."

These same papers, he declared, were party to defiance of the Supreme Court 100 years ago. Expressions of opposition in that hectic period, he added, make current assertions by people like Senator Eastland (D-Miss.) sound "temperate and shy."

The object of agitation at that time, he explained, was the slavery law.

STRESSED DOCTRINE

It was editorial writing by Kilpatrick, 36, which brought interposition to the attention of officials resisting segregation. Since then resolutions of interposition have been adopted in Virginia, Alabama and Georgia.

The editor said in his speech that in our government of checks and balances, the President is checked by the legislative, the legislative by the President and—under the doctrine of interposition—the courts by the States themselves.

He listed seven premises as explaining and justifying the right to interpose:

1. The States are sovereign States (with sovereign meaning supreme—supreme in power, and position).

2. As sovereign States, they entered into a compact called the Constitution, in which they were co-equal members.

3. Each member has the right to judge for himself an infraction of the compact.

RIGHT TO INTERPOSE

4. If an infraction is alleged, each State has the right to interpose its sovereignty to arrest the progress of the evil.

5. The Supreme Court violated the compact with its decision on segregation. And in cases of infraction alleged against the court, only the States may resolve the issue of contested power.

6. In asking (by interposition resolutions) that the question of power be settled, the States are acting within the spirit and intent of the Constitution.

7. Only by asserting the powers of the States as a check and balance against the court can there be hope of recovering sound constitutional government.

Kilpatrick emphasized that interposition in itself is not nullification. It is, he said, a broader action and can result in nullification.

Pay Increases Ordered Amid Brazil Unrest

Rising Prices Spur Move by Aramburu

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Provisional President Pedro Aramburu, seeking to halt growing labor unrest over rising prices, has ordered a 10 per cent wage increase for workers in industry and business.

The government, in an extraordinary midnight news conference, also announced a minimum wage of 1,120 pesos (about $63) monthly for the Buenos Aires Federal District and said minimum wages for other districts would be set shortly.

The wage increase and minimums, retroactive to Feb. 1, do not apply to farm or domestic workers or employees covered by other regulations. The government said a separate decree would be issued shortly to cover them.

permit delaying the tuition plan until 1958. They think enactment of their bills would preserve segregation in Virginia at least two more years.

A significant feature of the measures was the avenue of appeal that would be set up whereby contesting action would have to be taken in State courts before the Federal courts could be petitioned. Appeals would move from the local school board through the Circuit Court and the State Supreme Court.

Such State channels of appeal, in line with legislation enacted by North Carolina last year, has been sanctioned by the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals. State appeal would have to be exhausted before the Federal courts would be called on to act.

INCORPORATED PLAN

Boothe said the bills he and Dalton offered incorporated parts of the Gray Commission and the North Carolina plans. Among other features he cited:

1. They would require no constitutional amendment such as proposed in the Gray plan for private tuition grants.

2. They would enable local school boards forthwith to prepare their school programs and budgets for 1956-57.

3. They would save the State and localities tremendous sums of money which would be necessary under the proposed plans for private schools.

In a prepared statement the two lawmakers said, "We acknowledge that the plan envisaged by these bills is far from perfect. However, we do feel it is the soundest plan yet suggested, both legally and practically, for solving our dilemma."

Budget

capital needs (an estimated $125,000,000 backlog) out of current revenue.

GROWTH DEMANDS

Each year there are arguments about how large the capital budget should be. The city has a physical plant valued at nearly $150,000,000. It is argued that a 4 per cent maintenance of this alone would cost $6,000,000. On top of that come the demands resulting from the city's growth.

The civic center, with a new city hall, is considered to be a must item for the sake of economy. Not a single one of the city's operating departments is now located in the outgrown building that was completed 62 years ago. How much is lost in operating efficiency because of this is anybody's guess.

The Planning Commission will take the initial budget draft, worked up by the preliminary planning section of the Works Department, and mold it into budget. This the commission will send to the City Manager. In his turn, he will make such changes as he wishes and send it on to City Council, which must receive it not later than May 1.

Middle East Arms Embargo Is Attacked

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—(AP)—The State Department found itself under heavy pressure from all sides today because of its White House-approved action in embargoing shipments of arms and military equipment to the Middle East.

These are the pressures:

1. Saudi Arabia was urging that the government "soon find a way" of delivering 18 Walker bulldog tanks which were caught in New York early yesterday when the embargo was imposed.

2. An Israeli embassy spokesman said his government "saw little point" in imposing a general embargo in order to stop the tank shipment to Saudi Arabia because, he argued, the result could have been gained by suspending that shipment alone. About $110,000 of scheduled shipments to Israel are affected, he said.

3. A Senate investigation of the whole tangled affair was demanded by Chairman George (D-Ga.), of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. George said he wants an explanation from Secretary of State Dulles when Dulles returns from a Bahamas vacation.

Under instructions from President Eisenhower, the State Department is reviewing the whole situation with respect to arms deliveries to Egypt and the Arab states.

Some officials argued that the delivery of 18 tanks to Saudi Arabia, which has no common border with Israel, would not materially affect the Israeli-Arab balance. If their view prevails, it appeared likely Saudi Arabia eventually would get its tanks.

Baptist Leader Calls Christian Education 'Cure'

Christian education will cure Americans' worst sins—dishonesty, insobriety and immorality—the president of the Virginia Baptist General Association told members of the Richmond Baptist Association here yesterday.

The president, Dr. Charles Harman, of Bluefield, said 79 per cent of some 3,000 high school students surveyed in New Jersey regarded cheating as "not even mildly wrong." Fifty per cent of American high school students drink beer, he said, citing the same survey.

First Baptist Church here led all Virginia churches in total 1955 mission gifts, the Rev. Kenneth E. Burke, state association treasurer, reported.

The association had its annual meeting at Grace Baptist Church.

Two Students To Assist In Prison

Two sophomore ministerial students at the University of Richmond have been selected to serve as assistants to the chaplain of the State Penitentiary under the university's practice ministers project.

The students, Thomas F. Mains and Elliot E. Herweyer, both of Richmond, have already begun their duties under the supervision of the Rev. George Ostergren, penitentiary chaplain.

They will talk with prisoners and counsel them on their problems. Under the practice ministers project both the students and Mr. Ostergren will report back to the university on the progress of their work.

The Rev. J. Ralph Shotwell, the university's director of religious activities, praised the project and said that it will make the students "more apt to understand the human problems and infinitely more able to make use of preventive religion."
