

Thomas L. Robinson, President and Publisher
Brodis S. Griffith, General Manager
C. E. Prince, Editor
R. L. Young Jr., Managing Editor
Huey Stinson, Circulation Manager

SATURDAY, JUNE 30, 1956

Gov. Hodges: New Star In The Democratic Firmament

By DORIS FLEESON

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—Gov. Hodges, from the vantage point of the annual Governors Conference just concluded, is in a transition stage...

Picking Up The Reins: Hodges, Meyner, Muskie And Ribicoff

Parks Surplus And The Soap Opera

The story of the park board surplus ought to have a sponsor. It's a soap opera to end them all. There's a new installment every day featuring worried officials, fluctuating bank balances, suggestions of secret doings, etc., but one never seems to find out what happened, or if anything extraordinary did happen.

financial mishandling have grown. We have seen no evidence of criminal wrong doing, and believe it is improper and injurious to the recreation program to have premature speculation on that point. But the furor has turned up some glaring inadequacies in the park board.

Charlotte's Ambassador To The World

STALEST news item in the paper today is that the Charlotte Post of Stickle has become president of Lions International. Everybody knew it was going to happen. Stories from the Miami convention all week have told of Mr. Stickle's impending election.

the community. We are delighted that it has the opportunity to exercise those talents in a much broader sphere. We are certain that he will fulfill his responsibility of bringing Lions of all lands closer together in bonds of friendship.

Soviet Sorcery Still Packs A Wallop

THE riots in Red Poland offers the free world tangible evidence of what has been called "critical malcontent" in the Soviet camp. Linked to the public breaking and agonizing reappraisals of Communist leaders in Rome, Paris, London and New York, the disorders have brooding significance.

The West's hopes that discontent was widespread and that a general bonfire would be ignited were soon dashed. The same hopes are being voiced today. But despite the violence in Poznan and the mouthings of Red leaders around the globe they are powerfully magnified—possibly blown up and distorted out of all reason.

'Hey — Pravda Is Reprinting From Us'

How Big Were The Big Touches?

Lamar Caudle Got A 'Bum Rap'

By ROBERT C. RUARK

I NEVER liked Matt Connelly as a man or official, and he wasted very little time loving me. But I think he's on a bum rap with his conviction on an income tax evasion.

Morganthau as secretary of the treasury because he was a no-good neighbor. I was in Henry's office the day he devalued the dollar, and I still blush from the memory of Hank's efforts to explain it.

From The Baltimore Evening Sun

MONEY MAKERS

SAMUEL Johnson, George Bernard Shaw and the late Michael Arlen had nothing in common as writers save two things. They all used the English language and they all believed money was a desirable as well as important thing.

though some of them certainly lived like men much in the money. In his study of the American writer in THE LITERARY SITUATION, Mr. Malcolm Cowley estimated that of the 15,000 "professional" writers in the 1950 census less than 200 earn their living by writing hard-cover books.

Drew Pearson's Merry-Go-Round

AN interesting scandal has developed in the government-owned nickel plant at Niagara, Cuba, where the manager of the plant bought a Cadillac with government funds, and where the paymaster had his mistress in $10,075 with the help of his family.

Shortages Found At Government Plant

When this column queried National Lead in New York about the operations of its two employees, there was no comment. National Lead said that we call back. This was done four times—still no comment.

Longer For President

Big affable Sen. "Wild Bill" Langer, North Dakota Republican, strolled into the Senate restaurant the other day, flanked by the tables shaking hands with fellow senators, and announced his candidacy for president of the United States on the Republican ticket.

Competing Wainwrights

It's strictly a family feud, but Jonathan Wainwright V., son of the Corregidor hero, was blocked from heading the Kinross Point Marine Academy by his cousin, blueblood GOP Congressman Stuyvesant Wainwright.

People's Platform Choice Of Governors

Editors: The News: AS WE ALL know there is a governors conference from the 48 states being conducted in New Jersey.

any sense that the creation as it stands is perfect; nor do they consider it a blessing to be working themselves into a blissful state of perfection by themselves.

There are two very distinguished governors from the South, Gov. Hodges of North Carolina and Gov. Timmerman of South Carolina.

Neither does a Christian tell himself into a personal state of bliss by reciting cant and saying prayers; for he is personally in control of his own life.

If the South ever intends to go into a convention and stand up for its rights this is the year for it to make a stand because it is a known fact that with the solid South going into this convention with its delegates uninstrusted it can support a candidate of its choice.

The faith is neither blind nor unreasoning, and most assuredly it is not superstition. It is simply an acknowledgment that man has need for more than self, and that this need can be supplied only through God and more specifically through faith in His Son, Jesus the Christ.

I feel that the gentlemen made these statements in all good conscience, but with no background of knowledge from which to speak. Perhaps if he would ask me to personally investigate that which he so blindly termed "blind and superstitious faith in God."

The scientists and philosophers can carry their truths only so long as they have faith in them, and the world will never solve its problems of heat, cold, famine and disaster, to say nothing of what is more than self, and that this need can be supplied only through God and more specifically through faith in His Son, Jesus the Christ.

I think that poor of Sweet Thing and Matthew J. should be let off with a peace bond, which would include the stipulation that they can't work for the government again.

Christians have endured and will endure, for centuries. . . . I have only this to comment. Christianity has endured and will endure, for centuries. . . . I have only this to comment. Christianity has endured and will endure, for centuries. . . .

I wrote a piece one time, when Harry was shooting off his mouth in the last campaign, in which I reflected that I respected the office but saw no reason to respect the man that held it, or the people around him.

From his reference to millions the Billy Graham it is evident that the faith in question is that which a Christian has, and in so classifying this we make a very great error, for Christians haven't faith in gods, but simply in God.

My views haven't changed any since, but I can't see how you can call Matt Connelly for as much as five years without giving him others in the Truman entourage as cellmates.

Known Facts Support The Christian Religion. I feel that the gentlemen made these statements in all good conscience, but with no background of knowledge from which to speak.

PEACE BOND. I think that poor of Sweet Thing and Matthew J. should be let off with a peace bond, which would include the stipulation that they can't work for the government again.

Creed Of Atheism Old As Religion. A CORRESPONDENT writes as follows: "The creed of atheism is a momentous discovery of truth. It is as old as religion itself.

My views haven't changed any since, but I can't see how you can call Matt Connelly for as much as five years without giving him others in the Truman entourage as cellmates.

I have only this to comment. Christianity has endured and will endure, for centuries. . . . I have only this to comment. Christianity has endured and will endure, for centuries. . . .

My views haven't changed any since, but I can't see how you can call Matt Connelly for as much as five years without giving him others in the Truman entourage as cellmates.

Life On The Way. THERE is an old Spanish proverb which reads: "The road is always better than the inn."

My views haven't changed any since, but I can't see how you can call Matt Connelly for as much as five years without giving him others in the Truman entourage as cellmates.

Life On The Way. THERE is an old Spanish proverb which reads: "The road is always better than the inn."

My views haven't changed any since, but I can't see how you can call Matt Connelly for as much as five years without giving him others in the Truman entourage as cellmates.

Life On The Way. THERE is an old Spanish proverb which reads: "The road is always better than the inn."

My views haven't changed any since, but I can't see how you can call Matt Connelly for as much as five years without giving him others in the Truman entourage as cellmates.

Life On The Way. THERE is an old Spanish proverb which reads: "The road is always better than the inn."

My views haven't changed any since, but I can't see how you can call Matt Connelly for as much as five years without giving him others in the Truman entourage as cellmates.

Life On The Way. THERE is an old Spanish proverb which reads: "The road is always better than the inn."

My views haven't changed any since, but I can't see how you can call Matt Connelly for as much as five years without giving him others in the Truman entourage as cellmates.

Life On The Way. THERE is an old Spanish proverb which reads: "The road is always better than the inn."