Ike Says Peace Big Ambition

By JACK BELL
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) President Eisenhower fixed "peace for all time" as the goal of the Republican "party of the future" in accepting formally its nomination for another four years in the White House.

Accepting "humbly but confidently" command of the GOP's 1956 campaign for national leadership, he told cheering delegates at last night's window session of the party's centennial convention it is not enough to promise "the young who fight the wars" that there will be "peace in our time."

"There is only one peace now, and that is peace for all time," he declared.

WAR PREPOSTEROUS
He said that the word war had become "not just tragic, but preposterous."

"With such weapons," he said, "there can be no victory for anyone. Plainly, the objective now must be to see that such a war does not occur as all."

Beaming at the thunderous reception given him and his running mate, Vice President Richard M. Nixon, Eisenhower pitched his bid for reelection primarily on his promise to work for "a brave and shining new world . . . a world in which back-breaking toil and long hours will not be necessary."

NOT RESTING
Nixon told the delegates shortly before in accepting his second-place nomination that "we have peace in the world today, but we are not going to rest on our laurels and be satisfied with the achievements of 3½ years."

It was a gay, colorful convention session that stormed approval for its two nominees. "I like Ike" balloons floated down from the ceiling. Eisenhower joined in hounding them around as the jointed 4½-inch preliminary ceremonies on the platform to begin his formal speech.

Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower, in royal purple hat and dress, carried a big sheaf of red roses, as did Mrs. Pat Nixon.

When he arose before the throng, the 65-year-old Eisenhower said he wanted to express his "great satisfaction" that the convention had decided to keep intact for this year's race the same team that won in 1952 against a Democratic ticket headed by the same man the GOP's opposition has named this year — Adlai E. Stevenson. Stevenson's running mate

Kidnaper Angelo LaMarca . . .

. . . And His Victim, Peter Weinberger (AP)

Crime Not Known To Wife

By FRANCIS STILLEY
PLAINVIEW, N. Y. — Quietly but tensely, Mrs. Angelo A. LaMarca told in halting phrases today the story of her husband's arrest in the Weinberger baby kidnaping. As to his guilt or innocence she said simply: "I don't know."

She said she had no inkling of what was in store when she and her husband arrived at their new home in this Long Island community at 2 a.m. Thursday.

"They had taken their two children to the home of her husband's parents at Elmont, Long Island."

"As they entered the driveway to their home, she said, two cars carrying four FBI men pulled alongside."

"The FBI men got out. Speaking of her husband, Mrs. LaMarca said:

"He wanted to know what they wanted. They told him they wanted to search the house."

SEARCHED HOUSE
"They came in and searched the house. Then two of the men took Angelo away and two men stayed with me."

Before her husband was taken she said, "I asked him what was wrong—what happened—and he told me not to worry about anything."

Mrs. LaMarca, a 31-year-old blonde, spoke to newsmen at her home. She was clad in a quilted housecoat and red house slippers. Often she paused after questions. Her answers were in a subdued tone.

She would speak a few words, sometimes halt in the middle of a sentence, press her hand against her temples, and made an obvious effort to control her emotions.

"They took me down to the police headquarters a few minutes after a half-hour or hour," she said.

"Police questioned me a while. . . . Then they said that my husband admitted writing the ransom notes. They told me perhaps if I saw him he would tell me where he put the baby."

"He didn't talk much to me. He did not want me to stay. He said he wrote the notes but he didn't have anything to do with the murder of the baby."

"He wouldn't talk to me any further."

Mrs. LaMarca said that there were police present in the room as she talked with her husband.

Then, she said: "They took me away from him and then when I was 10½ years of marriage had been 'pretty happy'—but that in the past few months they had encountered financial difficulties."

She said they had not been able to pay August payments on their $15,000 home into which they moved last May. She also said that other bills had not been met but declined to give their amounts.

She said she had noticed no

Financial Troubles Motive For Crime

MINNEOLA, N. Y. — (AP) — The decomposed body of kidnaped Peter Weinberger, with a safety pin still intact, was found today in roadside shrubbery 51 days after he was taken from the patio of his Westbury, Long Island, home.

It was found where FBI agents said Angelo J. LaMarca, a cab driver, told them he had abandoned the month-old child on July 5, the day after he took the baby.

LaMarca, 31, father of two children, was arrested yesterday by FBI agents and Nassau County police and charged with kidnaping. Financial difficulties apparently caused his act. He had asked $2,000 ransom.

IN SEARCH
More than 50 Nassau County police and FBI agents moved on the abandonment spot at 9-15 a.m. It was situated alongside a cut-off road from Northern State Parkway leading to Plainview where LaMarca lives. It is only 1½ miles east of the Weinberger home.

Forming a line an arm's length apart, the searchers moved slowly through the underbrush. Shortly after 10:30 a.m. the body was found.

Asst. Chief Inspector James Farrell said the baby had not been buried. He apparently had been buried in the underbrush, then a sun in a storm whipped up housekeeping vines and leaves to blanket the body.

It was not known whether the child had died or was killed before he was abandoned.

"The child was alive when it was placed on the ground, it may well constitute murder," Nassau County Dist. Atty. Frank Gotto said.

Asked why LaMarca, a taxi driver, was arrested, he said: "I asked you on page 4-A."

Negotiators Try To Avert W. E. Walkout

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Officials representing three Western Electric Co. plants in North Carolina today were engaged in a last ditch effort to head off a threatened strike.

A contract between the two ex-workers of the CWA, said yesterday, "All the strike machinery is set and ready to go if a satisfactory agreement is not reached by midnight. We do not plan to work in North Carolina this year without a contract."

STRIKE OKED
Joseph A. Berne, president of the CWA, said in New York yesterday that the union has approved a strike against the three North Carolina shops which employ 1,200 workers.

"Sensitive radio shops" by Berne, the three plants at Winston-Salem, Burlington and Greensboro are engaged in the manufacture of parts for the guided missile "Nike" and for the "Devlop" part of the nation's electronic defense equipment.

Berne's statement followed negotiations with the company over a contract for telephone installers of Western Electric. Should a strike over that contract take place, more than 18,000 workers in 44 states would be involved.

Officials of the three North Carolina plants and the union have agreed to carry over 24 of 36 points in the present contract.

CAUSE HITCH
Two new points plus 12 old ones have caused the hitch, Walker said. The company flatly rejected both of the new points. Company spokesmen were not available for comment.

Meanwhile, about 130 Western Electric installers in three North Carolina cities remained out on a wildcat strike. These included 90 at Charlotte, 32 at Newton and 3 in Lincolnton.

C. V. Nichols, Southeastern manager for Western Electric, said other installers continued to work everywhere else in North Carolina.

The original contract involving the installers expired last Saturday midnight.

Evening Prayer

Make our wish Thine, O Lord, and give us that peace which surpasses all human understanding. Create in us clean, confident and trustful hearts, and renew again and again the right spirit within us, the Christlike spirit. Help us to be equal to Thy demands. We ask it in Jesus' name. Amen.

Cool, Arid Weather Seen

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Pleasant weather—a little cool and dry—was the outlook for Midwest and Northeast sections of the country today.

A fresh batch of cool air moved southward from Canada over the north central part of the country. It extended over the Great Lakes region, southwestward to Missouri and westward to the Dakotas. The cooling breezes were headed eastward and were expected to spread through the Ohio Valley to western Pennsylvania and New York.

WARMING TRENDS
During the night there was a warming trend from Arkansas and Louisiana eastward to the coast and northeastward through the Ohio Valley and the North Atlantic Coast states.

Showers and thundershowers that hit areas ahead of the cool air moving eastward from the Great Lakes region diminished during the night. However, moderate rainfall was reported from the northward through Pennsylvania and New York.

TROUBLE, TROUBLE
WEEKS MILLS, Maine — Farmer Leslie Randall inadvertently ran his tractor over a horse's nest while mowing hay. In the frenzy, the tractor was wrecked and Randall suffered a broken leg.

Workers Get Boost

Consumer Prices At Record High

WASHINGTON (AP)—The cost of living jumped seven-tenths of one percent in July for the second successive month, sending consumer prices to a record high and bringing wage boosts to 1½ million workers.

The increase means that the consumer's dollar has lost more than one penny of purchasing power during the past two months and two cents in the past year.

Auto workers, under contracts adjusted to living costs, will obtain a 4-cent hourly wage increase. So will some 90,000 electrical workers.

Aircraft, farm equipment and some other workers will gain three-to-five-cent increases.

The July index, issued today by the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics, stood at 117 per cent of the 1947-49 average.

COMES AS SURPRISE
F.L.S. Commissioner Ewan Clague told reporters: "It surprised us. We didn't think it would be that much."

The July increase was attributed largely to what Clague called "super-seasonal" peaks in fresh fruits and vegetable prices. But all other major price entering the cost of the city-farmers market basket rose two-cents, transportation

—DOES SHE REALIZE?

Rally At The Ticker, Lads; She Shan't Invade Our Ranks

BIRMINGHAM, England.—Mrs. Neale Neale touched off a dizzy among the ticker tape today by insisting on her right to become a lady bull—or bear.

She has applied for membership in the Birmingham Stock Exchange, a frequently rowdy arena where men have been known to lose their pants along with their shirts.

WALKS, TOO
If accepted, she will be the first woman stock exchange member in the history of England, Scotland and Wales.

The first reaction from the all-male citadel of commerce was a resounding "no, sir, by gad, sir!"

Nobody denied that Mrs. Neale—quiet, middle-aged and comely—is qualified for membership. She has 13 years of experience with a local stockbroker firm.

"She knows her stuff," conceded one exchange member, "but good heavens, does she realize what she will be getting into?"

"She knows her stuff," conceded one exchange member, "but good heavens, does she realize what she will be getting into?"

When stock trading is lively, he explained, there often are scenes and sounds on the floor of the exchange which are not for the eyes or ears of a lady.

"Language of a certain kind is heard," he said, "and in some celebrations it is not unknown for members to debag other members in an excess of exuberance."

(Debag is a British verb meaning to take the pants off of.)

"Besides, said the broker, 'if we admit her, we are rushing to join the exchanges in every other big city in Britain.'"

GAINS SUPPORT
The London Daily Telegraph galling Mrs. Neale's support, denounced the Birmingham brokers as "unreasonable, discourteous and uncharitable."

"Who asked The Telegraph, 'has a better eye for a bargain . . . a man or a woman?' Who could be more soothing to the fidgety, more persuasive to the timid investor? This is a case of sheer pride and prejudice."

Mrs. Neale wasn't saying anything. But her application is in and there's no rule against women. The next move (and oh, how they dread it) is up to the exchange council.
