The Pearsall Plan's Great Challenge

NORTH CAROLINA'S position is now quite clear. Tar Heels mean to preserve the form and avoid the substance of compliance with the desegregation decision.

closing powers are invoked hastily or recklessly, the worst fears of those who opposed the plan will be realized—that is, a snowballing of school closures within an atmosphere of tension and hysteria.

Shhhhhh! The Public Mustn't Know

ONE ISSUE the people won't be asked to judge in November is secrecy. For Congress and the administration it is a pot-and-kettle proposition.

But Congress really can't justify much righteousness. It barred the public from 1,131 of its 3,121 committee meetings in 1956.

When Chivalry Was Still Imaginable

IT IS WHISPERED in the library set that the loneliest author in town these days is the one who is not writing a book about the Civil War.

unimaginable terror—involving mushroom clouds, brick-of-war diplomacy, nerve gas and brain washing.

'Well, Here's The Milestone — Now What?'

and the spirit enter. Large blossoming of the arts will rebound to their benefit as it will to all our benevolent relationships should be increased not only for technical and science studies but for music, art and cultural attainment.

Isolationism Renewed The Unchanging Republicans

MILWAUKEE, Wis. Frustrated by the obstructive tactics of Republicans in Congress, President Eisenhower in his first two years in the White House gave serious thought to forming a new political party.

an Eisenhower Republican, but his conversion is hardly more than skin deep. The Republican organization in Illinois is under the domination of former Sen. C. Wayland Brooks, a diehard isolationist.

FOR AND AGAINST

Tennessee offers a fascinating example of how to be both for and against Ike. Leader of the party in that state is Rep. B. Carroll Rice, an old-fashioned Tall Republican.

STRONG BACKER

By intervening in the Congressional campaign in 194, Mr. Eisenhower helped to elect Sen. Clifford Case in New Jersey and to elect Rep. Charles A. Halleck of Indiana, who put the President in nomination for a second term in San Francisco, is credited with being

This Is The Time To Build Democracy

Editors: The News: BEING A young American and a mother soon, I cannot help but think of the future of public education and the preparedness for college.

Elvis Is Wasting Plentiful Talent

Editors: The News: THERE has been much said about Elvis Presley from time to time. Some favor him, while some hold him in disfavour.

A Visitor In London Wonders Where The Englishmen Went

LONDON WHATEVER happened to the Englishmen who used to be seen in Spain or America? But they certainly aren't in town.

FLASHY CARS

I never saw so many flashy cars any place, not even Texas, as presently congest the traffic on getting full credit for having introduced gangster thinking to jolly old London.

Snake's Tongue: A Fable

ONE DAY the serpent was stretched upon a creek bank, in an entirely relaxed manner, when the raven glided down the track upon spying the serpent, the raven looked surprised.

Biggest Load

This is the biggest load of free mail ever dumped on the public by a single senator, marking Martin the new undisputed Franking King.

Senator's Valet

The State Department heard recently that Sen. Bourke Hickenlooper (R-Iowa), when touring the Far East, wanted government funds for a valet.

Dulles Alerted

The President has instructed Secretary of State Dulles to be ready to fly to London for another emergency conference on the Suez Canal.

Cat Feet

It reads: "The long waiting list of senators and members for this book requires that, in fairness to them, it be treated as a holiday book, i.e., it is to be returned 10 days from this date, so that it may be delivered to the next senator or member on the waiting list."
