Looks Like Drought Will Keep Right On

It looks like there'll be more warm and dry weather, probably continuing through the weekend.
 Thermometers should climb to about 60 degrees tomorrow, following an expected high today of 65 degrees and a low tonight of 57 degrees. Temperatures are running well above normal during the daytime and slightly below at night. Normals in the Charlotte area for this season of the year are 74 degrees high and 53 degrees low.
 Temperatures for the month so far are averaging about normal, due to a period of cool weather from Oct. 3 to 7.
 The fair, warm and rainless weather is coming to us from a high pressure ridge extending today from New England southwesterly across Texas.
 There's a weak frontal system penetrating some of the northern sections in the East, but it is expected to become stationary before it reaches the Carolinas.

NORTH CAROLINA: Generally fair through Friday with little change in temperatures. High temperature this afternoon upper 70s, low tonight in lower 50s except lower 60s along coast.
SOUTH CAROLINA: Generally fair through Friday with little change in temperatures. High this afternoon lower 80s. Low tonight in 50s except lower 60s along coast.

FORECAST FOR WATERS TO SAVANNAH
 NE winds 10-20 mph, occasionally water will offshore. Today and tonight little change with chance of scattered showers.

 In the Ovens Auditorium lounge where The Charlotte News and The Charlotte Observer were hosts at a reception. As he entered the auditorium building, he commented that the new television-auditorium complex is "quite an impressive layout."
 The governor left for Pinehurst by helicopter about 5:30 p.m.

Although most of the exhibits were ready for the governor's inspection yesterday, quite a few were not to be ready until the fair opened this afternoon.

The displays range from displays of printed material to actual manufacturing operations. Roberts Spinning Co. of Sanford has perhaps the largest exhibit. Its huge machines spinning yarn on one side of its looms and twisting it on the other.

THE CELANESE CORP. of America also will spin cloth from synthetic yarns while young women model the finished garments.

Carroll Mills displays its sheets and towels in a double house of many colors. Seven dills of as many colors how to one another and the passerby.

Smoked Turkeys Inc. of Marshallville shows how turkeys are processed and gives white hermits as a souvenir. The North Carolina Fisheries Association of New Bern has two big refrigerators stocked with frozen seafood to give to fairgoers.

An electrical model of a sugar refinery with telephone explanations of how sugar is refined is Savannah Sugar Refining Corp.'s contribution. It's North Carolina headquarters is in Wilmington.

practically every North Carolina industry represented. Most are on the first floor of the mart but many are in the colonnade and a few in the mall between the buildings.

The second floor of the mart houses Trade Fair offices, a lounge, a display by Charlotte's Mint Museum and a theater where industrial films and movies about North Carolina are shown.

Fair exhibitors will be entertained at a dinner at Charlotte Country Club at 6 p.m. today. Tomorrow's events include a luncheon at the Myers Park Country Club. Television star Ronald Reagan will speak at this event.

Miss Susan Woodard is scheduled to arrive today. Miss Ulricke, Miss Marlene Schmidt of West Germany, will arrive tomorrow and will be at the fair Saturday and Sunday.

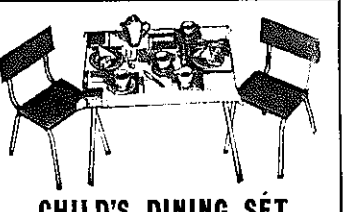

THE GENERAL PUBLIC is invited to attend the fair between the hours of 2 and 7 p.m. today. Tomorrow through next Friday hours will be from 1 to 7 p.m. Saturday's hours will be from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m.

The fair will be reserved for buyers between the hours of 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. tomorrow through next Friday with the exception of Sunday.

Buyers, exhibitors and their guests will be admitted free. Tickets for the general public are $1 for adults and 50 cents for children.

Radiation Tests Set

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Memphis scientists plan to expose a monkey in continuous increased radiation soon to determine whether it impairs its ability to perform physical tests.
 The monkey will be placed in a rotating Plexiglass cage at the University of Tennessee medical unit. The rotating speed will vary, exercising the animal, slightly, or running him to the point of exhaustion.
 The scientists will daily count pathologies of the monkey's stamina and performance should show how it is being affected by low-level radiation, such as fallout from Russia's nuclear bomb.
