A Worn-Out Dictator Finds Time To Write

One of the many new books we ven't read and feel no particular insilnation toward is Mussolini's latest offaring. It is about the Duce's son and is estitled, characteristically enough, "I Speak With Bruno." (It is "I", you will observe, who heads the cast of charac-

Unless the nation is to suffer the paralysis of a national railway strike, one side or the other is going to have to give in. It will be, in all probability, the roads, for they are caught between the calamity of an insufferable strike and the calamity of being taken over by the Government to keep Defense goods moving. Against the unions there is no pressure which can be exerted save the intangibles of their own consciences, Mr. Roosevelt's persuasion and public opinion.

As for a legal way to compel Labor.

As for a legal way to compel Labor to be bound by the verdicts of media-tion or fact-finding boards, it does not exist. The Government has written laws concerning labor relations, yes, but only to define what employers may not do on pain of prosecution and punishment. What Labor may or may not do is still entirely up to Labor.

ABUNDANT LIFE FOR THE MASSES

THE MASSES

Mr. Roosevelt said that if there is to be prease in the postwar world there must be a more abundant life for the masses of the people of all countries. He quoted from the Atlantic Charter the objective of fullest collaboration because the control of the countries. the objective of fullest collaboration ba-tween all nations in the economic field. He said there must be no place in the postwar world for special privilegs for ather individuals or nations. Again quoi-ing the Atlantic Gnarter, the Fresdens said all states, great or small, victor or vanquished, must have access on equal terms to the trade and to the raw ma-terials of this world which are needed for thair economic prosperity. He omit-ted the charter's qualification regarding "existing obligations," which has aroused a good deal of supprison. Mr. Roosewell said a survey is being a good deal of supricion.

Mr. Roosevelt add a survey is being made how of the immediate postwar needs of nations whose economies have been disrupted by war. He recognized also that the work must go far beyond temporary remedies for what he called the ills of a stricken world.

WE ARE PAYING

In the undeclared war now going on in the Atlantic, we are siready feeling the cost. The loss of the Reuben James the cost. The loss of the Reuben James was our most costly naval loss of life in many years, American Navy officers and seamen are risking their lives. Merchant ships are risking their crews. All of this before war is acknowledged officially. A heavy monetary cost is in prospect. Now we make a billion dollars cially. A heavy monatery cost is in pros-poct. Now we make a billion dollars loan to Russis. Taxes are going to force down standards of living. Secretary Mor-genthau is trying to get another boost of 15 per cent in the income tax.
