For this there seems no justification. And it certainly gives rise to the suspicion that the Eastern operators and the United Mine Workers are right in charging that what it all adds up to its an attempt to block agreement, in the hope of taking advantage of the national emergency for a competitive gain.

City Politics

Littlejohn, We Believe, Is Only a Side Issue

The least desirable and most confus-ing of all things that could happen in the city election would be for Frank Littlejohn to become an issue. Littlejohn, to be sure, represents more than a man and a police capital. His name has de-veloped into something of a symbol which stands for the right, a symbol which the men, whose intentions have appeared to be unwholesome, would like

If the campaign shapes up in that form, why, of course we all should have to turn out once more and defend Little, on the campaign takes in most of those whose intentions have appeared to be unwholesome, why, that faction ought to be defeated just for safety's sake, if no other.

But to draw the issue on that basis is to oversimplify, to give the people a choice between black wrong and white think there is more to it, and we are sort of feeling our way toward the core of it.

As far-as the candidactes of Messra.

(To Mr. Baxter and Mr. Davis, however, the office of mayor itself represents, in all probability, the culmination of their political aspirations, and we think that they are taking advantage of the support of their respective organizations for wholly beneviesh purposes. Mr. Currie is nobody's protegé, is backed by no organization except of that inciplent kind which can come out of any banding together for a cause. But that's speculation, Let's leave it at this! Mr. Currie is backed by no close organization.

tuon. Now as to which of these candidacies in their ethical codes but in such prac-tical matters as the selection of a City Manager and the running of the municipal corporation, that is difficult to tell at this stage. But that will be important to know, and as time goes along and candidacies outline themselves more clearly, we hope to be able to tell.

Last week he went down to Washington to set if he could get some action. His complaint was investigated by a spidery drillian clerk, who shuffled through filling cards, provided in and out of various of-fices, and finally advised our friend to go homes and wait in patients.
