Under the UNICEF program governments and individuals do donate voluntarily, but any government receiving UNICEF help must match the value of the fund's aid with local goods and services. On the average they provide $2 for each dollar put in by UNICEF.

One dollar donated to UNICEF, because of the matching fund provisions and cooperation of industry, provides enough vaccine to protect 100 children against tuberculosis, 565 glasses of milk, enough DDT to protect eight against malaria, enough penicillin to treat 20 for yaws and enough sulphone to treat a child for three years for leprosy.

Pritchard, 64, had his right lung removed in 1953.

Asked if, in his opinion, cigarette smoking is the cause of lung cancer in human beings, Kensler said, "No, sir, it is not."

The doctor also answered "No, sir," to the question: "In your opinion does anyone know the cause of cancer in man?"

state who have put forth their diligent efforts to expedite this program. Because of the intense eagerness of librarians, trustees and interested groups to do their part in cooperating with the program, I am hopeful that the 1963 Legislature and the next governor will continue to expand and strengthen this all-important program."

LARGE AND SMALL

A majority of the libraries also shared equalization aid which is extra aid paid to communities less able to afford minimum standard library service from local funds. This aid assures that all citizens of the state will be able to receive the same basic measure of service regardless of the local economy level.

Libraries both large and small shared the appropriations, from Venango Public Library in Crawford County which serves a population of 318 to Free Library of Philadelphia which serves 2,002,512.

Later this year, payments will be made to 30 district library centers which serve local libraries and readers in their respective areas with informational services. Every portion of the state has been assigned to a district center, giving each resident some degree of library service for the first time in the history of the state.

EARLIER GRANT PAID

A survey of the Commonwealth's public libraries made in 1958 at the request of Gov. George M. Leader revealed that more than two million, or 19.6 per cent, of the state's population was without library service and that service to another 5.7 million people was substandard.

It was this study that led to action during Gov. Lawrence's administration which brought about the revitalization of libraries in Pennsylvania.

In June of this year, 208 libraries in 59 counties participated in a book grant which increased reference and juvenile materials for more than 6.5 million residents. Former state aid to county library systems also is being continued and expanded.
