was used as a Confederate signal station, and the building was filled with wounded. Since the building was part of the Confederate line, it was damaged by Union cannon shot.

Students of the seminary had been dispersed when it was evident that there was to be a battle here. When the Union forces retreated, the seminary professors and their families fled into the town to take refuge with friends.

The report of Dr. Simon Schmucker, president of the seminary, concerning damage was noted. Dr. Schmucker's report showed his home was the most badly damaged of the campus buildings.

"The rebels," Dr. Schmucker wrote in 1863, "took possession of it (Schmucker's house) and their batteries also planted in the immediate vicinity, it was unavoidably shattered by the federal artillery from Cemetery Hill. Thirteen cannon balls or shells pierced the walls and made holes several of which were from two to three feet in length and nearly as broad, window frames were shattered to pieces, sash broken and the greater part of the glass in the house destroyed. The fences around the yard and garden were nearly all leveled with the ground, as well as those around the entire seminary lands.

"The seminary edifice (now known as Old Dorm) was perforated by several balls and large portions knocked out of the northeast gable corner. There being a crack in the wall extending over two stories, the question arises whether that portion of the gable end must be taken down and rebuilt from the foundation."

The seminary building was continued in use as a hospital for several weeks after the battle.

CRITICIZES MOVE BY JFK

The United States is violating international law and the spirit of Christianity by blockading Cuba, Dr. Stoyan Gavrilovic, professor at Dickinson College, said.

Speaking at a special United Nations Day program at Huntingdon Friends Meeting near York Springs, Dr. Gavrilovic said President Kennedy first should have taken the issue of Cuba to the U.N. The meeting was sponsored by a Quaker committee on peace.

The U.N. has adequate machinery to handle the problem, the former Yugoslavian diplomat said.

"People in other countries look to this country as a leader in Christianity," he said. "They expect this kind of thing (the blockade) from other countries but not from the United States."

Gavrilovic, a professor in international law, described Kennedy's blockade proclamation as a "19th Century proclamation, and said that it violated international law by interfering with "freedom of the seas."

The speaker at one time was Yugoslavian undersecretary of state and for many years served as that nation's delegate to the old League of Nations and the United Nations.

17,000 Hear Ike Rip Into JFK's Administration

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower appealed to Americans Thursday night to make whatever personal sacrifices are necessary in the Cuban crisis, then he ripped into the Kennedy administration on domestic issues.

"Until this urgent problem (Cuba) is solved to the satisfaction of our nation," the two-time Republican president said, "every loyal American will, without hesitation, carry out and conform to any instructions, pertaining to it, proclaimed by the commander in chief."

Eisenhower, speaking before a packed crowd of some 17,000 at a GOP rally in Pittsburgh's Civic Arena, called upon his countrymen for "visible and genuine unity" in face of international dangers.

HAS "BRAKED" ECONOMY

After referring to the Cuban situation, Eisenhower swung into an attack on the administration's domestic policy. He said the 21 months of the Kennedy administration has braked the economy and paved the way to continued unemployment and deficit spending.

In a speech intended to enhance the chances of Pennsylvania Republican candidates in next month's election, Eisenhower ridiculed Democratic party philosophy as "Government of the people, by the Washington bureaucracy, for the expansion of executive power and the entrenchment of far-frontier theorists."

He said, "our country is too great in its destiny to be turned over to the members of a clique in Washington, tinkering and tampering, in the attempt to produce, someday, somehow, an acceptable blueprint for the future of every one of our 50 states and 183 million citizens."

"THEY WANT POWER"

Making his first visit to Pittsburgh since campaigning for Richard M. Nixon in 1960, Eisenhower said the Democrats are dead set on one thing: "They want more power for the executives—the grab for power—in the continuous effort to take away from the Congress its constitutional responsibilities."

"Take back control of your government," he urged.

Eisenhower spoke following talk by William Scranton, Republican candidate for governor who is running against former Philadelphia Mayor Richardson D. D. and U. S. Rep. James Van Zandt, who is bidding to unseat Democratic Sen. Joseph Clark.

Both Scranton and Van Zandt rejoined the campaign trail after attending a special congressional briefing in New York on the Cuban situation.

"NO ONE IS WRONG"

Van Zandt said, "My opponent may claim one distinction. Probably there is no one in the country, certainly no one in the U. S. Senate, who has been as wrong all along on Cuba as Joseph Sill Clark."

Van Zandt said Clark told an audience in Scranton: "I am not sure what the right thing to do is, but I am sure what the wrong thing is—to shoot from the hip as Jimmy Van Zandt would have you do—to establish a naval blockade."

Van Zandt added, "Senator Clark's fight against a naval blockade of Cuba makes him unfit to advise and consent with the President on American foreign policy."

Scranton urged all Pennsylvanians to back the President in the Cuban crisis and added in a political vein:

"These things are bad enough, but now with our nation picking her way cautiously through a new time of crisis and peril, Pennsylvania has even more urgent reasons to take her rightful place in the union of states."

Scranton said the state no longer can afford to live in what he called "the lost limbo of high unemployment, poor government and power politics."
