Emergency Declared By India

Red Chinese Troops Drive Deeper

NEW DELHI, India (UPI)-The government proclaimed a "state emergency" throughout India tonight...

There was no immediate explanation of the move, which came as an Indian spokesman unnounced that Communist Chinese troops have driven deeper into India, threatening the northeastern border capital town of Borndilla.

Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru's officials moved swiftly to put India on a war looting.

They called on all Indians to surrender to the government their jawelry and hoarded gold to help pay for the country's war effort.

The government also announced n new issue of defense bonds and hinted at stern economic measures if the public did not ecoperate in keeping prices down and end hoarding.

The disclosure of new Commu nist advances in the undeclared border war came as Parliament made plans to meet in "emergency session" a week from next Thursday.

THE Indian spokesman said the advance guard of some 10,000 Chinese troops that Wednesday captured the monastery town of Towang had swept five miles east of the town and clashed with sindian troops at Jang.

This is on the icen track to Bomdilla, the capital of the Northeast Frontier Agency, Another Chinese force has driven 15 miles south from Kibitoo near the Burmese border, the spokesman

The national radio network said the government also decided to build up "home guard" organizae reorganization of economic plans to meet the Red threat.

Reports that Defense Minister

V. K. Krishna Menon had been dismissed because of his failure to prepare Indian border troops to meet the Communist onslaught were dismissed by the ministry as 'all nonsense. Indians in mounting numbers have been urging Premier Jawa-harlal Nehru to get, rid of Menon and take over the Defense Ministry himself, possibly with a generas his assitant to advise him on technical military matters.

Report from the border indicated the Communist invaders still were advancing on both eastern and western fronts, but in the Toward sector at least the Indians were on favorable ground. The Reds' Peiping radio claim-ed new victories today on both fronts, but complained that Indian troops had adopted a "scorched earth" policy—historically a Rus-sian specialty—in some places be-

In the East, the radio claimed the capture of three strategic passes and a bridge. New China said that in the West, advancing forces ousted Indian troops from strongpoints north of the Chipchap and Changlung Riv-

The salvage of the remaining potentially deadly chlorine tanks will continue with the second tank due for lifting this element.

Libraries Win Greater Role Since Sputnik

The use of libraries has increased tremendously since, Sputnik I, with emphasis on scientific subjects, Mrs. Frances Necl Chency of Peabody College told members of the Mississippi Library Association here last night. Mrs. Chency president of the Southern Library Association, spoke at an evening banquet in the Downtowner Motor Inn.

"We have a growing number of patrons, particularly younger people," she told the group, "Some 2,000 pages are being printed ev-ery minute and there are more than $00,000 periodicals. The importance of reference librarians thus has became even more sharp-ly delined. ly delined.

would be three times greater than now, and with more of them entering graduate work.

From one fourth to one-half of our students in 1980 will go in-to graduate study," she said. With this increased enrollment will come improved teaching methods with greater emphasis on television and other modern devices. During the next 20 years we will see more students taught by fewer teachers."

BECAUSE of this, heads of libraries should place as much emphasis as possible on reference libraries - she said.

Delegates were welcomed by W. M. McGough, president of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce, who cited the great number of local authors.

"It is fitting that you should meet here," McGough said. "Among our authors are the Hod-See — Librarles Win — Page 2

Be Boarded By U.S. Navy Soviet-Chartered Ship Is Allowed To Proceed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two U. S. Navy destroyers halted a Lebanese ship sailing under Soviet charter to Cuba today, boarded and searched it and then allowed it to pass through the blockade. The vessel, the 7,268 ton freighter Maruela, was allowed to continue its passage to Cuba because no prohibited materials were found in its cargo, the Defense Department announced.

It was the first boarding incident since President Kennedy's quarantine of arms shipments went into operation. The freighter was ordered to halt early this morning by two destroyers on duty about 180 miles northeast of Nassau in the Bahamas.

The boarding party was from the destroyers Joseph P. Kennedy Jr., named for President Kenne dy's brother who was killed during the war while on a volunteer mission over Europe, and the

In their messages to Washington, the destroyer crews reported that the Marucla cooperated in the search which lasted for near-

The boarding party sent a ra-dio message which said: "No prohibited material shoard. All papers in order. Have obtained copy of manifest."

THE Maruela was registered under the Lebanese flag and apparently owned in Lordon, But it was chartered by the Soviets for the voyage to Cuba from the Russian Baltic port of Riga, Latvia.

A recent U.S. Maritime Administration report lists Lebanon 10th among free world nations involved in trade with the Cubans:

According to the Defense Department the freighter's cargo consisted of 12 trucks lashed on deck. The holds contained such products as sulphur paper rolls and truck parts,
Since none of this is considered

"offensive" military material under the President's quarantine, the ship was allowed to proceed.

THE first ship to be intercepted by the blockading task force was a Russian tanker. It was allowed to pass through the quarantine ring Thursday because its cargo was petroleum which is not embargoed. In Thursday's case, only radio contact was made, But this morning, the Navy went aboard. The meeting between the two destroyers and the freighter took place about 180 miles northeast of Nassau. At 6:24 a.m. this morning, the U.S. ships received instructions to go aboard, the Defense Department said.

At 0:29 a.m., the Pentagon said, the Joseph P. Kennedy lowered a whale boat. The boarding team was led by Lt. Cmdr. Dwight G. Osborne, of East Paterson, N.J., and Lt. Cmdr. Konneth C. Reynolds, Coronado, Calif. Osborne is executive officer of the Pierce and Reynolds is the executive officer of the Kennedy. * *, *

THREE minutes after the whaleboat was over the side, the Marucia lowered a ladder so the Navy team could come aboard.

At 6:50 a.m., the Defense Department said, "the leaders of the boarding party stepped on the Marucla's deck. Whether the ship was allowed to proceed or ordered to turn back depended on its cargo. If "offensive materials". were aboard - such as equipment for missile sites-it would be ordered to turn around.

White House and Pentagon officials said work was continuing Cuba, capable of hurling nucleararmed rockets into the United State:

President Kennedy agreed Thursday to Acting U.N. Secre-tary General U. Thant's plea that the United States, Russia and Cuba meet to discuss the crisis. Thant was to start the talks today, meeting individually with the U.S., Soviet and Cuban ambassadors.

Stevenson, Zorin In Dramatic U.N. Exchange

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UPI)-U. S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson and Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian A. Zorin engaged Thursday in oncol the most dramatic exchanges in international diplomacy.

Stevenson leaned across his arm of the great horseshoe desk of the Security Council. He was red-faced and glared directly at

"I am prepared to weit for my answer until hell freezes over, if that is your decision," Stevenson snapped.

Welf, hell has not frozen over and Stevenson and the rest of the Security Council members have not got the answer from Zorin The question, as put point-blank by an enraged Stevenson Thursday, was this:

"Do you, Ambassador Zorin, deny that the U.S.S.R. has placed and is placing medium and inter-mediate range missiles and sites in Cuba? Yes or no -- don't wait for the translation - yes or no."

Three more times Stevenson demanded the answer. Ambasa-dor Daniel Schweitzer of Chile requested an answer. Everyone waited expectantly --- but the answer never came. Zorin spoke all around the question, refusing to give a direct reply.

Stevenson, known about the United Nations as a calm, deliberate diplomat, had turned tiger.

HE strained across the desk almost as if he wanted to confront Zorin physically. At times be wagged his finger or pointed his pencil or set a paper on the desk in front of him with a decisive motion as he made his points. Zorin, outwardly impassive, kept his eyes averted to the desk in front of him as he scribbled

'This is kind of rough," said an awed newsman in a whisper as he watched from a booth overlooking the scene.

Stevenson started off softly, then warmed the subject up and the tension grew.

"We are here today and have been this week for one single reason - because the Soviet Union secretly introduced this menacing offensive military buildup into the island of Cuba while assuring the world that nothing was further from their thoughts.

"The argument, in its essence. of the Soviet Union, is that it was not the Soviet Union which created this threat to peace by secretely installing these weapons in Cuba but that it was the United States which created this crisis by discovering and reporting these installations

"This is the first time, I confess, that I have ever heard it said that the crime is not the burglary but the discovery of the burglary — and tha the threat is not the clandestine missiles in Cuba but their discovery and the limited measures to quarantine further infection."

Stevenson then noted that none of the Russian leaders had denied the existence of such a buildup.

HE said the United States had not objected to the introduction of defense Soviet missiles into Cuba and had acted only after carefully verifying the new nature of the missile buildup. Later United Nations and U.S. aides brought a large easel into the room and set it up behind Stevenson so Zorin and the rest of the council members could see Pictures about two-by-two feet were set up and as an aide pointed Stevenson showed how an area north of the Cuban village of Candelaria had been transformed from a peaceful countryside to a military tent area to a complex for medium-range missiles — the latter change within a 24 hour

Spectators and council members craned to look at them, but Zorin hardly gave them a glance. After Stevenson was finished, Zorin spoke briefly quoting a Soviet government statement carried by Tass that the Soviet Union does not need overseas missile bases, pointing out Kennedy himself said Gromyko denied the presence of such offensive weapons in Cuba and casting doubt on the authenticity of the photographs Stevenson showed.

Stevenson immediately jumped in with this final rejoinder:

"I have not had a direct answer to my question. The repre-sentative of the Soviet Union said that the official answer of the Soviet Union was the statement that the U.S.S.R. does not need to locate missiles in Cuba. I agree: The U.S.S.R does not need to do that.

"But the question is not whether the U.S.S.R. needs missiles in Cuba. The question is: Has the U.S.S.R. missiles in Cuba? And that question remains unanswered. I knew it would remain unanswered."
