Missiles Packed to Quit Cuba

Khrushchev Reports Withdrawal Begins; U.S. Confirms It

By the Associated Press

The United States was reported today to have received some evidence that a number of dismantled nuclear-capable missiles have been loaded aboard Soviet ships in Cuba and may well be moving toward Russia.

In Moscow Premier Khrushchev said that 40 Soviet rockets stationed in Cuba have been dismantled and "are probably already on their way." Now, he added, there is no need for a summit meeting with President Kennedy.

He confessed deep relief at easing of the Cuban crisis but warned, in talking to reporters at a Kremlin reception marking the 45th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution, that some tensions remain.

RELAXED MOOD

The Soviet premier, however, seemed in a relaxed mood and appeared to be celebrating a relaxation of the Cuban tension.

"A hard policy it not always best," he told reporters in discussing conduct of foreign policy. "Flexibility is necessary." "I was never in favor of a summit meeting. If there were a situation where there was a question of peace or war, then, of course, we would be in favor of it. But now there is no such necessity," he said.

Even before information on U.S. reports of missile movements came out, it was evident that officials in Washington took Khrushchev's report as valid.

DISPUTED POINT

The possibility appears that Soviet ships with missile cargoes may have begun moving out of Cuba ports before the problem of inspection of the dismantling and removal process was publicly resolved.

However, officials believe that while some parts of the inspection issue are manageable through U.S.-Soviet agreements, at least one issue still apparently in dispute could cause serious new difficulty. That issue involves an internal check in Cuba to see that all missiles are actually taken out.

At the United Nations, the United States and Soviet officials began talks with representatives of the International Red Cross today on plans for inspection of Cuba-bound Soviet ships.

After a five-hour meeting last night with Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov, U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson said glumly, "This one was not fruitful."

Today's meetings with the Red Cross representatives were concerned with working

Brown Reelected - Margin Heads Across 300,000

Victory Near For Transit

Demo Hold In Senate 68 to 32

By JACK BELL AND WILLIAM T. PEACOCK

WASHINGTON—A series of cliff-hanger election contests today with a solid gain of at least three seats in the Senate and little loss in the House, but were ousted from governorships in Ohio, Michigan, and Pennsylvania.

In addition, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller held New York for the GOP.

Surveying the results, President Kennedy said "I am heartened" but let his comment go at that in a brief statement.

Democratic National Chairman John M. Bailey, however, called it a tremendous victory for the Kennedy administration and the Democratic party.

SURPRISES

It was an election quilled with stunning surprises. Not the least of these was a squeaker that Sen. Lister Hill, veteran Alabama Democrat, had in winning over Republican James D. Martin.

The tight run there apparently reflected in part resentments over the Kennedy administration's use of troops to force the University of Mississippi to admit a Negro student.

With all Senate seats decided, the party lineup for the new Congress was 68 Democrats and 32 Republicans. The last race settled was that by Sen. Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska, for re-election. In the present Congress, the party division is 64 Democrats and 36 Republicans.

HOUSE SITUATION

Democrats had elected 248 members of the House and the Republicans 175, a pickup of one for the GOP. Democrats were leading in 11 of 12 contests still inconclusive and a Republican in one. The 12 seats include 11 in California and one in Alaska.

As for governorships, it was possible the windup would leave the numerical division between the parties where it was before the election—34 in

Bond Proposal Expected to Win By Slim Margin

The Bay Area's historic $792 million rapid transit bond proposal today headed for victory by the narrow margin of less than one half of one per cent.

A 15-hour period of suspense over the fate of the crucial issue ended this morning as a flood of "yes" votes from Central Contra Costa County apparently provided the margin of victory.

In order to pass, the measure requires 60 per cent of the total of all votes cast in Alameda, Contra Costa and San Francisco Counties.

With less than 5 per cent of the ballots remaining to be tabulated, the proposal held a 60.8 per cent vote of approval. And most of the uncounted precincts were located in Southern Alameda County and central Contra Costa County — areas which had been generally favorable to the measure in the earlier returns.

The late surge from Central Contra Costa counterbalanced blocs of "no" votes from the eastern section of the county. When the complete Contra Costa returns are tabulated, the margin of victory for the bond proposal is expected to fall slightly below 60.5 per cent.

Passage of the measure—labeled Proposition A in all three counties—would put a host of technicians to work on development of the 75-mile train system designed to be one of the most modern transportation networks in the world.

Construction would begin about Jan. 1, 1964, and the first section of the line would go into operation in 1966. First service probably will be provided between Richmond and Hayward.

Key to success of the proposition was a 66 per cent margin in favor of transit in San Francisco.

With only 15 precincts remaining to be tabulated, the Alameda County "yes" total was only a shade under 60 per cent.

The measure was faring worst in Contra Costa County, where the final margin in favor of the measure is expected to approach 54 per cent.

The $792 million will be used exclusively for the construction of train facilities in the three-county area.

Another $133 million would be provided from surplus bridge tolls for the construction of the key link in the system—a transbay tube. Some $71 million in revenue

A TRIUMPHANT VICTORY V FROM GOVERNOR BROWN Has good word for Richard Nixon—(AP)

Incumbents In State Win

Kuchel Has Easy Victory Over Richards

By DON THOMAS

Tribune Political Writer

Gov. Edmund G. Brown headed toward a victory margin of more than 300,000 votes late this afternoon.

His GOP opponent, Richard M. Nixon, conceded defeat at 10 a.m. today and sent the governor a telegram congratulating him.

Governor Brown issued his victory statement before 1 a.m.

The former vice president delayed his statement for nine hours in hopes of a repeat of the 1960 election when he forged a head of President Kennedy in closing California returns.

Heading back into office with the governor were Lt. Gov. Glenn Anderson, Atty. Gen. Stanley Mosk, Controller Alan Cranston, Treasurer Bert Betts and the lone Republican state constitutional officer, Secretary of State Frank H. Jordan.

U.S. Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel had an easy win over Los Angeles State Sen. Richard Richards.

Tightly pressed at one point, the lieutenant governor started pulling away from San Francisco's Mayor George Christopher as the count continued, and by mid-afternoon

Rafferty Wins Over Richardson

Dr. Max Rafferty has been elected state superintendent of public instruction.

The election was conceded by his opponent, Dr. Ralph Richardson, at 11.45 a.m. today.

At the time, Rafferty led by more than 100,000 votes and was pulling away.

"With three-fourths of the returns in," Richardson said in Los Angeles, "it is apparent that Dr. Rafferty has won and I offer him my congratulations. . . I (am) hopeful that my constructive and clean campaign will yet serve the cause of education in California."

"It remains now only for all, winner and loser, to work toward that purpose."

What had appeared earlier to be a photo finish turned abruptly into a runaway for the 45-year-old Rafferty, who stormed the state with a campaign that called for the return of the three Rs to education.

The clash of the two educators, in one of the most hotly-contested non-gubernatorial contests in California history, was touch-and-go throughout the night and into the morning.

At one point, they stood less than 5,000 votes apart, after Rafferty had initially held a fairly commanding lead of 25,000 votes.

The battle was a hard-fought one, right down to the wire.

The campaigners met in nearly 50 face-to-face debates, with Rafferty calling for a return to the three Rs and Richardson defending the state's public schools while

Nixon Admits Defeat in Bitter 'Last Press Parley'

Congratulations Forwarded to The Governor

BEVERLY HILLS — (AP) — Richard M. Nixon admitted defeat in his bid for California's governorship today, congratulated the victor, then in an acerbic bitter statement declared: "This is my last press conference."

The former Republican vice president did not elaborate on the remark, but in view of the crushing blow dealt to his political career, by his loss to Gov. Edmund G. Brown it seemed apparent he intended it to mean he is bowing out of public life.

Nixon was trailing Democrat Brown by a substantial margin when he went before news conference microphones in mid-morning and aired his views on political smears and on press and broadcast coverage of his long campaign.

After making his "last press conference" remark, Nixon told a big crowd of newsmen: "You won't have Nixon to kick around any longer."

He looked drawn, and appeared grim during most of his talk. Once or twice he smiled a quick, tight smile, but his eyes at some points snapped with apparent anger. After concluding, he waved curtly and stalked away.

At one point in his nearly half-hour impromptu talk he remarked: "Thank God for radio and television. They will make papers more honest."

He devoted many of his words to news coverage of the campaign, but actually made few detailed allegations.

At one point he observed that in his last campaign

Proposition 24 Fails By 2-1 Vote Margin

The bitterly-contested anti-Communist amendment—Proposition 24—was trailing by a 2-to-1 margin today.

Also losing was Proposition 23, the State Senate reapportionment initiative. Proposition 1-A, the $270 million bond issue for higher education facilities, was approved more than 2-1.

In Berkeley, president Clark Kerr of the University of California, said:

"With funds provided by Prop. 1-A our state colleges and the university will be better able to accommodate the great increase in students who will be seeking to enroll in the next few years — a staggering 40 per cent increase between now and 1965." These three were the most closely contested of the 25 state measures submitted to yesterday's voters.

The anti-Communist measure authorized by Assemblyman Louis Francis, R-San Mateo, declared existence of a world Communist movement and would bar "advocates of subversive doctrines" from holding public office or any state job. It also would require teachers and other state employees to answer legislative committee inquiries concerning Communist affiliation.

Murphy and Hannon In as Supervisors

A flood of home-town votes for Supervisor John D. Murphy enabled him to defeat George M. Silliman, former Newark mayor, in Alameda County's closest election race.

After trailing throughout the night, Murphy forged ahead in the First District race today with the late return of votes from Pleasanton.

Livermore Bonds Win

A $900,000 bond issue for the Livermore High School District was approved yesterday by a vote of more than 3-1.

The bonds will qualify the district for a $1 million state loan to finance the new Granada High School.

With the count virtually complete Murphy's lead ran over 1,000.

Meanwhile Robert E. Hannon, Castro Valley attorney, rolled up a 4,000-vote victory over Valance Gill, San Leandro vice mayor, to win the Second District post on the Board of Supervisors.

SUPERIOR JUDGES

Two municipal court judges — Robert L. Bostick and William H. Brailsford, were promoted to Superior Court posts. They ran far ahead of their respective opponents.

Judge Frederick M. Van Sicken and George W. Phillips, Hayward attorney.

Alameda County voters joined in the sweep that re-elected state officers.

In the local congressional races, Rep. Jeffery Cochran and Rep. George P. Miller easily won reelection, and Don Edwards, San Jose businessman, had no trouble winning in the new 9th District, which was created this year, carrying both Alameda and Santa Clara County sections. All are Democrats.

Also reelected were LeRoy Goodrich and George C. Roeding, directors of the Eastbay Regional Park District; Robert M. Copeland, John L. McDonnell, William J. Betten-court, and Guy Warren of the Alameda-Contra Costa Transit District; and Stuart Davis and Louis J. Breuner of the East Bay Municipal Utility District.
